Country town, fields, woodland, villages, views, arrival by Underground

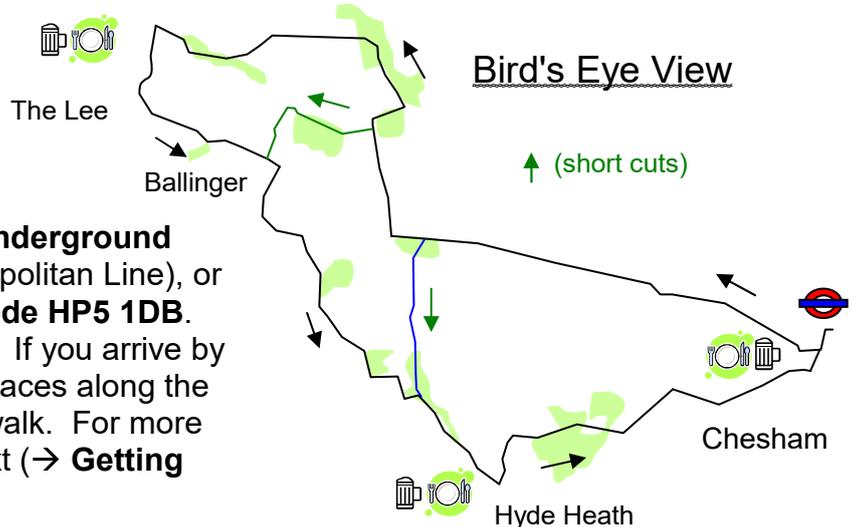

In Brief

Another wonderful walk in the rolling Buckinghamshire countryside, amidst the legendary Chiltern beechwoods. The central point is the wonderful old town of Chesham. All this is accessible via the London Underground!

Outside the town, there are two pubs en route which serve excellent food. (To enquire at the Cock and Rabbit, ring 01494-837540. For the Plough, ring 01494-774408.) Note: they may be closed on Monday!

The walk can be shortened by taking one of two short cuts, described below as the Little Hundridge Lane Walk and the Ballinger Loop, both satisfying in their own right.

There are some nettles on the fringes of paths so shorts are not advisable in case they catch you unawares, especially in high summer. The terrain is mainly grassy so, in dry seasons, trainers or good walking shoes are wearable. However, in late autumn or winter, you may find a fair amount of mud, in which case boots are best. A large dog will have difficulty on all but the short walk because there are a number of stiles.

The walk begins in Chesham Underground Station (a terminus of the Metropolitan Line), or in the town of Chesham, postcode HP5 1DB. All day parking is £5 (card only). If you arrive by car, there are numerous other places along the route where you can begin the walk. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

Archaeological evidence shows that there has been a settlement at Chesham since 8000 BCE. The first recorded reference to the town is under the Old English name 'Cæstæleshamm' which means 'the river-meadow at the pile of stones'. The river that runs through the valley is the River Chess, apparently named after the town.

Chesham station, opened in 1889, is now a Grade II-listed building. It holds a number of records. The 3.89 miles between Chesham and Chalfont & Latimer is the longest distance between any two adjacent stations on the Underground network. At 25 miles northwest of Charing Cross, Chesham is the furthest Underground station from central London. It is both the northernmost and the westernmost Underground station.

The Walk

Leg 1: Chesham to Black Grove 4 km=2½ miles

- 1 From the station, turn left downhill to the shopping area. If you need a supermarket, the only one is a big Sainsbury on your right; there is a Greggs on the left who sell sandwiches. Turn left along the pedestrianised section as far as the little clock tower. Turn right just before the clock tower and cross over the main road, St Mary's Way, to the narrow Church Street directly opposite (using the zebra on your left). Avoid a signed footpath into Bury Lane but take the next cobbled track right just after that, marked Welcome to St Mary's Church. Just before a gate into the churchyard, turn right on a tarmac path with the church on your left. Go through a tall metal gate into Lowndes Park – a huge open space, one of the many blessings to the people of Chesham. Immediately turn left uphill on a tarmac track, by a fingerpost indicating Lower Rednor & Chartridge CM4. The Guides hut on the right shortly stands on the site of the historic manor Bury Hill House. Soon you need to shift a little to the left to continue on a dirt track. You come out into open country.
- 2 Avoid paths forking right across the grass and keep dead straight under the ash and horsechestnut trees. In the far corner, your path runs down under trees. As you come out into the open again, avoid a level path on your right and take a narrow left fork. Your path crosses a lane, goes through a wooden swing-gate and down two steps into a large meadow which in high summer is full of wild flowers. Ahead of you are two possible paths: take the left-hand path. At the other side, after a wooden swing-gate, your path veers a fraction left across a meadow and goes through another swing-gate to a tarmac lane. Turn right on the lane. In 50m, ignore a footpath on the left and continue on the lane till it bends right. Leave the lane here by taking a path on the left beside a large wooden gate.

- This wide path runs in a long valley known as Herbert's Hole. Follow this nice easy path (although possibly muddy in wetter seasons) past several field boundaries. After two gates, the path is narrower and runs between hedges. After around 300m you meet a crossing path marked by two chain stiles. On your left is a wood called Black Grove.

Decision point. If you are doing the short walk, skip to near the end of this text and do the Little Hundridge Lane Walk.

One walker suggests turning right through other chain stile, up and through woods, passing the historic Pednor House, across fields with fine views down to Pednor Bottom, rejoining the given route (OS map required).

Leg 2: Black Grove to Bellows Wood 1¼ km=¾ mile

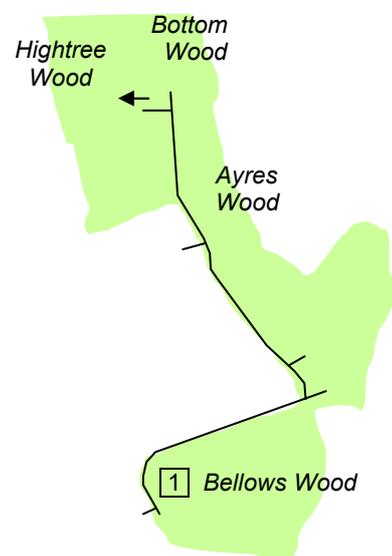

- Continue straight on ignoring the chain stiles. The path eventually ends at a road. Turn left, passing on your right, at a 3-way road junction, Herbert's Hole cottage. Immediately after the cottage, go right through a donated metal gate and up a narrow path beside a fence beside Okey Wood. Your path zigzags right-left through a (now gateless) gap. Your path continues ahead on a driveway to a junction of paths by a fingerpost. Go left through a wooden swing-gate.
- In 10m, go right through a small metal gate and follow the path beside a wire fence and a cattle pasture on your left. After a second meadow your path goes through a swing-gate to a junction on your left: keep straight on regardless. Shortly, your path goes right over a stile into Bellows Wood. Immediately turn left again on a descending path along the left-hand edge of the wood. In 80m, you reach a 3-way fingerpost.

Decision point. If you are doing the medium walk, skip to near the end of this text and do the Ballinger Loop.

Leg 3: Bellows Wood to The Lee 3¼ km=2 miles

- Continue straight on at the fingerpost, quite steeply downhill. At the bottom, ignore a stile and swing-gate on your left and turn right, staying in the wood. This is the most majestic part of the walk, overlorded by those great beech trees. As the open meadow on your left ends, at the corner, turn left on a path, still beside the meadow and with Ayres Wood on your right. Ignore a footpath on your right, keeping straight ahead on the bridleway. Your route goes under wires and through a small metal kissing-gate. Ignore a footpath on the left here and continue on a level path, deeper into Ayres Wood. You are in another majestic beechwood forming a high canopy. After 150m, look out for a marker post with white arrows on a tree. Turn left here uphill through the well-named Hightree Wood. As the sign indicates, you are on part of the Chiltern Heritage Trail.

- 2 In only 60m, your path wheels right: this is indicated by white curved arrows on trees. Follow a level path for about 50m until you see more white arrows curving left. Your path leads you through hollies, a wooden swing-gate and out into a gorgeous green meadow which makes a welcome change after your trek through the woods. Keep ahead along the right-hand side. At the far side, a stile takes you into a wide grassy shaded boulevard. This is the most fascinating and mysterious parts of the walk. It seems to be an ancient drover's path, where livestock could be driven between fields or out to the highway. You pass through a metal kissing-gate, then three more spaced at intervals. Finally, after nearly ½ km on this trail, you emerge onto a tarmac road, Ballinger Road.

- 3 Turn left on the road and, in 60m, go right at a junction through the quietly genteel hamlet of Lee Common. After houses and the village well, on your left are allotments, concealed by a hedge. Just opposite St Mary's Close, go left on a footpath indicated by a yellow arrow. Your path goes through the allotments, past a children's playground on your left and through a small wooden gate. It now crosses a gravel drive and leads you through a wooden swing-gate, down the right-hand side of a pasture and through another swing-gate into a larger meadow. Veer right on a very faint path diagonally down the meadow. At the bottom, you go through a narrow section with a clump of trees on your right. Ignore a kissing-gate here on the left in a corner. A little further on, you meet a second kissing-gate: go through it into woodland.
- 4 Follow this nice wide path in the woods of Lee Common, at first near the right-hand edge before the path enters the centre of the wood. After nearly 300m, your path veers left to meet a tarmac lane. Turn right on the lane. Soon on the other side of a brick wall is Manor Gardens, now open to the public, part of the grounds of the adjoining Manor which you will see from the Green. At the end of the lane, turn right on a major road and immediately left to a welcome pub by the Green in the hamlet known as The Lee.

The "Cock and Rabbit" is quirky (or charming, if you like) because it is both a pub (you can just have a drink) and also an Italian locanda, the Graziemille, that has been run for 35 years by an Italian family who have resisted anglicisation. This is serious food, cooked with care and attention, far from your usual pizza joint with less emphasis on pasta. Try the salmone thermidor or the pollo al contessa rosa. The pub is open all day Saturday and Sunday. You may need to leave your boots outside. Booking is advisable (ring 01494 837540).

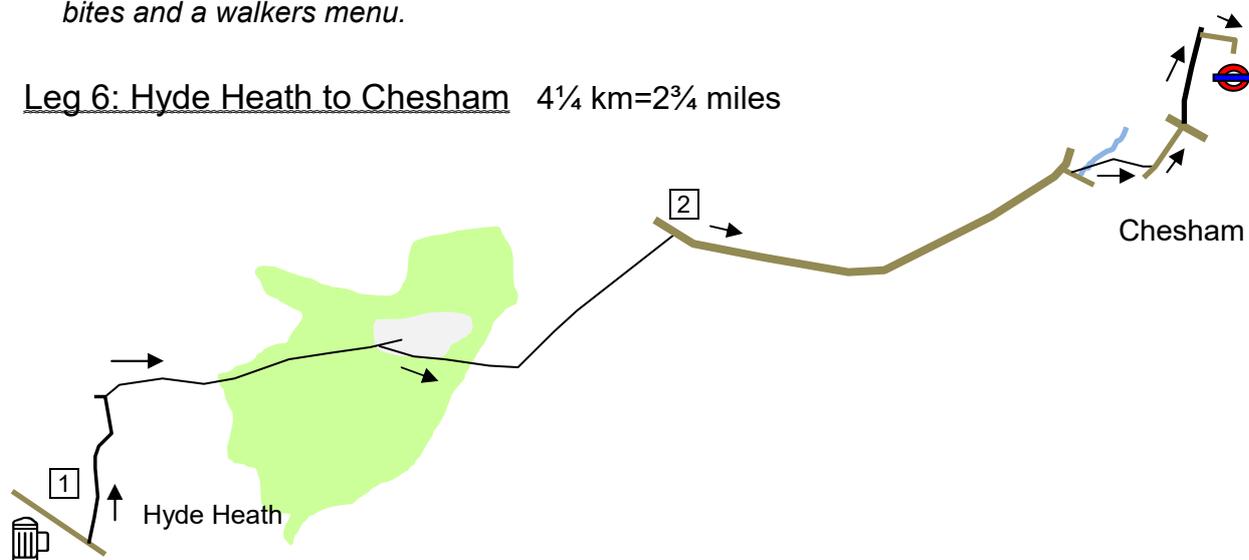

Leg 5: Ballinger to Hyde Heath 4 km=2½ miles

- 1 Walk the right-hand edge of the sports pitch to the next corner and here turn right on a narrow path between hedges. Go over a stile and over another stile into a meadow. Keep your direction along the left-hand side of this meadow. In the next corner, go over a well-concealed stile into a wheat field. Keep straight ahead on a path that runs parallel to the left-hand edge. (The official footpath goes left-right-right round the corners but local people have carved this route across, with or without the farmer's consent.) In the far corner, go through a gap and along the left-hand side of the next field. In the next corner, go left over a stile and turn right on a narrow path with a small meadow on your left and a tall hedge on your right. You meet an unusual L-shaped double stile. Turn left over it (you can do this in one manoeuvre!).
- 2 You are now on a meadow path running beside a wire fence on your left. On reaching a fenced-off enclosure, go straight ahead over a stile and along a path between hedges. The path veers left over two stiles and takes you into a small sloping meadow. Keep straight on diagonally, heading for a white house ahead. Unofficially, a gap in the line of trees on your right gives you a way of avoiding yet another stile (and is preferable, say some walkers, to avoid some yappy dogs). Just before the house go right over a stile and cross a horse pasture to the opposite corner. Here, go through a metal kissing-gate by a pair of ornamental gates to a road.
- 3 Cross the road. Avoid a residential road but take a narrow footpath just on the left, opposite the sign for Marriotts Avenue, going up two steps. Your path runs between gardens and a meadow. Ignore a footpath off to the right. Your path enters a wood and turns left beside a fence. In 30m you reach a marker post and arrows painted on trees. Turn sharp right here on a clear path through woods with a bank and an old wire fence on your right. Soon there is a green meadow on your right and your path comes out through a small wooden gate beside a large one onto a driveway. Turn left on the drive.

The old community of Hyde Heath, probably named after a landowner of past times, is famous all around for its traditional fête, held each May. A full and lively account of life in the village by Irma Dolphin will be found at <http://www.hydeheath.com/VillageHistory.htm>. The Plough is the last of what used to be five village pubs. As well as a wide-ranging menu, it offers lighter bites and a walkers menu.

Leg 6: Hyde Heath to Chesham 4¼ km=2¾ miles

- 1 After a possible break, continue along the road for a further 50m, passing Brays Lane and the quaint village shop. Turn left at the village school onto a very wide dusty track, going past the entrance to a supply depot on your right. The track winds downhill past some large houses. A bridleway joins you from the left as you pass a large cottage, Lane Gate End. About 20m before a metal field gate visible ahead, fork right on a narrow path and turn right on a wide path that runs between two lines of hornbeams. Your path enters the lovely White's Wood on a nice straight route. After 400m, you come out into a green meadow clearing in the centre of the wood. Avoid the wide forester's path that veers left across the centre and instead keep to the right-hand edge of the clearing. Your path becomes more obvious as you advance. At the far side, it goes down into the wood again. As the wood shrinks away, you are once again walking between lines of trees or shrubs, between (mainly unseen) fields. Eventually a gravel drive leads to the main Missenden Road.
- 2 Turn right on the road, using the tarmac footway. In 700m you begin to pass the residential streets of Chesham. Shortly after, you enter the old town and, at a bend in the road, reach the Queens Head (Fullers), a worthy place for farewell refreshment. One way to return to the Underground station is as follows. Turn right before the Queens Head on Wey Lane and immediately fork left on a footpath beside and over a stream, part of the River Chess. Follow the tarmac footpath between a park and gardens with the stream on your left. At the end, turn left on Germain Street, passing the Red Lion. Cross straight over a main road, using crossing lights, to the pedestrianised High Street. Follow the High Street to the next junction and turn right to the station where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Chesham and the outlying villages can be reached from the M40 via Beaconsfield or the A41 via Berkhamsted, amongst other ways. If you park in the town, the best place is on the housing estate (Chessbury Road) that you pass near the end of the walk, just off the Missenden Road, postcode HP5 1JR. Other possible starting places are Lee Common, Ballinger or Hyde Heath.

By train: London Underground service from Baker Street etc.: check timetable on leaving and returning as the connection is not too frequent!
