Woodland, heath

In Brief

Here are three circular walks on Wimbledon Common, all beginning from three completely different points, but leading to the Windmill and back. So each walk has a There section and a Back section.

Alternatively, you can of course start each circular walk at the Windmill itself, where there is a large car park.

These walks are perfect for any time. You don't need boots of course. Dogs are welcome and the Common has no nettles to speak of.

Wimbledon and Putney Commons are protected by the Wimbledon and Putney Commons Act of 1871. There are two distinct kinds of terrain: the western slopes, which lie on London Clay, and support mixed woodland and the upper eastern and northern parts which constitute a huge area of heathland. The Commons are run by the Clerk and Ranger and two dozen-odd employees and horses. The Conservators handle the annual budget which is paid for by an annual levy on houses near the Commons.

The Windmill café offers a welcome rest from travels over the Common. This is not haute cuisine but the staff keep enough items on the bill of fare to keep the average family, including the youngsters, happy. The soup and crusty bread are delicious.

Wimbledon Windmill was built in 1817 and has been altered and repaired numerous times. It is no longer a working mill but the machinery is on view. The excellent museum is open to visitors weekends until 5pm April to October.

Walk 1: from Wimbledon Village 5 km=3 miles

Getting there

By train or Underground: Get out at Wimbledon station. Turn right out of the station and walk along Wimbledon Hill Road past the Library and then up the hill to the Village. Alternatively, the 93 bus will take you there. After passing the Dog and Fox and, just before the Rose and Crown, turn left onto Southside Common and follow it until the pond Rushmere Pond is on the right. Veer right, skirting the pond on your right. After this, head towards the large hotel ahead, Cannizaro, offset from the road to the left of a pink house. The start of the walk is just to the right of the hotel.

By car: There are many good places to park on the Common, though not in the Village where there are parking meters. The walk starts at Cannizaro Park, so a good place is on the road outside the Park, postcode SW19 4UN. There are also spaces in both parts of The Causeway that lead off Cannizaro Road. See the map. Note that both of them are one-way roads and the only access is from Cannizaro Road. There is also plenty of road parking in Woodhayes Road, opposite or near the pubs mentioned below. Another good place to park is in the car park at the end of Sunset Road or in Sunset Road itself. (Sunset Road is a small road leading across the Common through the white gates at the corner of Camp Road and Camp View, near the golf clubhouse. If you park here, you start the circular walk at a slightly later point.)

For refreshments, there are the excellent Fox and Grapes pub in Camp Road, just near Cannizaro Park and the equally excellent Hand-in-Hand and Crooked Billet pubs just off Woodhayes Road, south of the Park.

There

- 1 The walk begins at the entrance to Cannizaro Park. This is on West Side Common, just past the imposing entrance to the Cannizaro House Hotel du Vin, through metal gates. Go past the little fountain to the large open space of the park. On the right is a white decorative birdcage. Turn left here, past the terrace of the hotel.

The park was once the garden of the house, originally known as Warren House, built in the 18th century and owned by the Grosvenor and Drax families. George III and William Pitt both stayed there. The new name came about after 1841 when the new owner Francis Plamonte, Count St. Antonio, a Sicilian by birth, inherited the title Duke of Cannizzaro. The house and gardens were sold to Wimbledon (now Merton) Council in 1947 and became a public park. The house, without the garden, was later sold off and is now a hotel. Rather high-class refreshments (at rather upmarket prices) can be taken here.

On the left is the sunken garden. Turn away from the sunken garden, nearly half right across the wide open grassy space, heading for a pair of trees (actually three) in the centre. After the trees, continue in the same direction, just to the left of a line of silver birches and, on meeting metal railings on the right, wheel right onto a wide path. In 20m at a crossing path go straight ahead down steps. At the bottom, at a T-junction, turn left. In 20m turn right by a wall. On reaching metal gates, turn right into the Italian Garden. Exit by gates at the far end and turn immediately left in front of the pond alongside a wooden fence on your left and, after the corner of the fence, fork right away from the fence, in a straight line uphill, over a crossing track and over grass to a noticeboard. Turn right here and go out through the back gate, along a track past allotments and out into the Common.

- 2 Turn right on the lane for a few paces and then left opposite the golf clubhouse, between white gates, on a tarmac drive that runs across the Common, Sunset Road. Follow it, either on the drive itself or on a path beside it, past a junction on the right and a small house (Springwell Cottage), to a small car park (an alternative starting point). Avoid a wide track straight ahead by a map of the Common and instead fork right past a green sign. In 15m fork left. This path leads in about 100m to a ring of scots pines known as Caesar's Well. Go down to the well with its ring of stones. Caesar's Well, so called from its proximity to Caesar's Camp, was a real well at the head of a spring until it dried up, hence the drain a little lower down where the water now emerges. The current structure dates from 1872.

- 3 From the well, turn right up the slope through the pines and then diagonally left on a very wide track leading into trees. In about 100m, cross a sandy horse track. 20m further, you reach another wide sandy horse track with a sunken circular horse exercise area on the left. Cross straight over the track onto a very narrow path, running between thick birchwoods on the left and a golf green on the right. Avoid all turnings off until in 300m the path comes up to a very wide grassy space.
- 4 Cross the grassy space, aiming about a quarter left, towards a seat on the treeline opposite which, when you reach it, has a faint carved dedication "Butch from her many friends". Take a narrow path diagonally left through the woodland, 5m to the left of the seat. Avoid all crossing paths and branches off and follow the winding path. (If you meet a wider path coming from the right, bear left on it.) After 300m, at the other side of the wood, there is another wide grassy strip. Go straight over towards a post on the other side with a green Capital Ring sign and two wide paths leading off. Ignore both paths and turn right along the edge of the grass on a path which in a few metres goes into the woods. At a junction of paths, veer slightly left on the main path, avoiding lesser paths left and right. The path goes down and crosses a flat bridge over a deep valley that carries the stream into Queensmere. It then goes up and finally terminates on the big grass plain near the Windmill buildings. Turn left to the Ranger's house and go round the enclosure to the Windmill and the café.

Back

- 5 With your back to the Windmill Museum, turn right round the buildings, ignoring the exit for cars, and then go past a large wooden gate onto a wide straight stony drive. (As a short cut, this drive leads back to Springwell Cottage and the small car park.) In 80m, turn left between white posts on the first wide crossing track that runs along the right-hand edge of a wide grassy space. After nearly 400m, the track crosses a horse track and, about 150m further, another broad path. Within 200m the track passes first a seat on the left and then on the right. It comes to within a few metres of a curving horse track on your left. There are several paths to the left and right here at a junction with thick woodland trees ahead. This is a decision point.

If you are returning via the Village: keep straight ahead. The path gets gradually closer to the main road (Parkside) and crosses over Cannizaro Road at a junction and soon after comes to the War Memorial. The Village is directly ahead.

If you parked the car in one of the locations suggested at the start of this text, you need to go over to the West side. Fork right at this junction and in 100m fork right, avoiding a left fork into a clearing. In 50m, keep right on the main path. Keep ahead for some distance on this rather winding path until it crosses a very wide combination of horse track and footpath. Keep on until the path emerges from the trees, continuing through shrubbery, crossing a minor road, with a large white house visible ahead. Cannizaro House and Park where this walk began are to the left of the white house.

Walk 2: from Beverley Meads 6¾ km=4¼ miles

Getting there

The Beverley Meads car park is at the end of Barham Road in West Wimbledon, postcode SW20 0ET. To get there, go to Coombe Lane, which runs between Wimbledon and Kingston and can be accessed from the A3 Kingston Bypass, and turn north up Copse Hill from the mini roundabout. Shortly after, fork left into Barham Road.

There (see map overleaf)

- 1 With the rugby pitches on your left, go through a gap in the boundary of tall cypresses and across the grass staying near the fence on the right. Go over a wooden bridge into Fishpond Wood and Beverley Meads Local Nature Reserve. Veer left on the boardwalk and follow the path through a large clearing which has a lone silver birch on the right. In 150m, on reaching a strip of woodland and a junction of paths, avoid a right fork leading into another open space and instead fork left on a straight path slightly downhill through dark trees. The path shortly passes the remnants of a fence and concrete posts and comes to a junction. Turn sharp right here into an area known as Fishpond Wood.
- 2 Follow the boardwalk between a bank on the left and a fence on the right. [2019: walkers report the boardwalk “closed” for repair(?), although they did walk on it.] Stay on the boardwalk, avoiding two turn-offs on the left, until it bends left by a meadow belonging to Warren Farm. The boardwalk finally comes to an end at a junction. Veer right for just 5m to reach another junction of paths. Take the leftmost wide path, i.e. sharp left. In 160m, turn right at a T-junction with a wide path. Flowing beside the path on your left is the Beverley Brook.

The Beverley Brook runs its short course into the Thames near Barnes. There is a signposted Beverley Brook Walk for exploring its whole length. The name comes from the beavers that used to inhabit it. Recently it has been cleaned up and has regained much of its wildlife.

- 3 Follow the brook for some distance through woods until you reach a brick bridge over it with a junction of several tracks. Continue straight ahead, still alongside the brook, for another good stretch. Finally you reach a junction with playing fields ahead. Here turn very sharp right on a major track. You are now on the Capital Ring ("CR"), as you can see from the signs. The Capital Ring is a circular, mainly green, walking route that circles London. It is 125km (78 miles) long. There's an official guidebook and on-line maps of the 15 sections. In 20m, fork left on a narrow path and at a T-junction turn left on a broad track, still on the CR.
- 4 Stay on the track for some distance. At first, you pass playing fields and a war memorial on the left. At a junction, ignore a right turn, thus leaving the Capital Ring and, immediately after, ignore a track left. The track rises gently and meets Putney Vale Cemetery on the left. In 150m, ignore a track on the right. In another 150m the track begins to descend. In another 100m or so, the track becomes level and straight and you can see it leading into the distance. In just 20m, where the metal railing bordering the cemetery comes into view on the left, turn right on a distinct path. This path leads up to Queensmere.

Queensmere is a large beautiful artificial lake deep in the woods. It usually has a large group of mute swans in residence.

- 5 Turn left around the lake passing a bench. After the second bench (James Beddoe) branch left uphill. The path wheels left away from the lake. At the top, ignore a path right through hollies and bear right under tall oaks. Go past a bench to reach suddenly the level grassy area by the car park and windmill.

Back

- 6] When you are ready to leave, turn right around the windmill enclosure counterclockwise, turning left beside the golf clubhouse on a shingle path. 15m before the next corner (where you can see two doggy bins ahead), fork right on a narrower path into trees. Quickly cross straight over a wide track and, 40m later, over another path, just as you come out of the trees onto a wide open space. Keep to the right-hand side, with golf links on your left, for well over 100m, staying in the open, passing two bench seats, until your path goes straight into woodland, where there are two more benches. You come out briefly very close to another golf hole and your path immediately veers right back into the wood. You come down to a pond. Veer right along a walkway with railings. Your path ascends into the start of a long green open space.
- 7] Walk the entire length of this green space, either along the left- or the right-hand edge, passing several golf tees and keeping straight on at all junctions. You pass several seats and another golf hole. Aim for some large pines and a grassy bank in the distance. After 300m or so, you cross a very wide path where, in the distance on your left, you can see a small square memorial known as the KRR Stone. Go up over the grassy bank by a seat and keep dead straight, passing another golf hole on your left. Walk between the large pines and veer a little to the right to the start of another long green open space. Keep to the right-hand side of this green space, passing two more benches and reaching a third bench at the very end, opposite a golf hole. Turn sharp right behind this bench on a narrow path into woods. In 15m you come to a T-junction with a wide woodland path.
- 8] Turn sharp left on the woodland path and follow it for 150m or so. You see on your right a large circular sunken sandy horse exercise area with green-painted railings all round it. Go round close to the left of the exercise area and take a path down into the deep woods. In 50m a path joins from the left. 100m further, you pass a seat on the left (to Joan from Dink). In 100m more, you come to a crossing path. Turn sharp left here.
- 9] In 100m cross a broad track and continue through an area of fine tall beeches. In nearly 150m, cross another track running beside a ditch. In 40m you go over a two-plank bridge. 70m after the little bridge, just before the path ahead begins to rise a little, fork left on a narrower path. In 100m you reach a 4-way junction. Turn right here on an even narrower path. Keep going uphill for 100m to reach a wide sandy track with a patch of grass and a seat on your left.
- 10] Cross over the sunken sandy track, slightly right, and continue on a narrow path. In 3m cross a stony driveway (leading to Warren Farm). In 10m, turn right at a T-junction. Continue on the path between fences, with the golf course on your left and a garden of Warren Farm on your right, which very soon gives way to open woodland. On reaching a fence on the right, keep straight on, now between fences again. The path passes a junction with a footpath on the left that runs through the golf course. Soon you have Beverley Meads Nature Reserve on the right and are back at the car park where the walk began.

Walk 3: from Putney Heath 5¼ km=3¼ miles

Getting there

The walk begins in Wildcroft Road, Putney, near the Telegraph pub.

By bus from Putney: No. 424: get off at the Telegraph Road bus stop.
Nos. 14 or 93: get off opposite the Green Man pub on Putney Heath and walk to the end of Wildcroft Road to start the walk.

By car: Park near the far (southern) end of Wildcroft Road, near the cricket ground postcode SW15 3TU. There is a long stretch of road here with no yellow lines. To get there, turn off Putney Hill at the green by the Green Man and take the left fork. The parking area is some way down, after the start of a fence on the left.

The start is near the Telegraph inn which is a little further down Wildcroft Road on the left. The Telegraph has sold beer since 1856. The inn and the road are named after the admiralty telegraph that stood nearby to convey messages between London and Portsmouth.

There

- 1 Go past the green metal barrier to the edge of the cricket green and turn right round the edge of the green. Before the 6th seat (Joyce Flood & Zeta) turn right on a good path leading away from the green. In 40m, ignore a path going sharp left. In another 30m, at a wide crossing path, turn left. Keep straight ahead over several crossing paths until you reach the corner of a garden fence on the left with a green metal barrier. Go left by the barrier past a small parking area to a white gate and a road, Telegraph Road. Cross directly over the road and immediately take the right fork into a clearing. Go across the clearing and re-enter woods. In 60m, the path meets another path coming from the right. Follow the path over a crossing path and onwards to a large open grassy space, known as the Frying Pan, which has seats and a semicircular bank.
- 2 Continue onwards, over a crossing path on the bank and join a wide path coming from the right. The path, known as the Scio Ride, is now a very wide one and eventually meets an even wider track with street lighting coming from the left. At this junction, leave the track and go, fractionally left, on a narrower path ahead by a no-cycling sign. On the right is the Scio Pond, a peaceful spot.

These locations relate to nearby Scio House, a nursing home, which in the 1880s was the residence of Mr Eustratios Stephanos Ralli who named it after that Greek island.

- 3 Continue ahead past the pond and turn left at a T-junction with a wide path. Over on the left is a fence and some mansion blocks. Continue ahead between the mansion blocks and, on reaching a clearing, keep right. Soon there is a metal fence on the left and a red-brick mansion block. At the next small clearing, keep right to join a tarmac path. This path takes you under the A3 road. At the other side, turn right and at the end of the slope turn left on a path into the woods.
- 4 Soon, on the right is the large pond Kingsmere. Keeping the pond on your right, turn right at a T-junction with a wider path, over a small bridge. Kingsmere has an island, usually inhabited by herons. Keep near the pond side and, just before a seat (Olive May Carpenter), turn left away from the pond and turn right in 20m at a T-junction. Follow the wide path through trees. Eventually you reach a junction of wide tracks. Avoid the first track sharp left and take the second wide track on the left.
- 5 Stay on the track until there is a clearing on the right with a seat (Joyce and George Biggs). Turn right here. The long hill on the right, popular with kite-fliers and, on those rare occasions, tobogganners, was formed from earth dug up whilst excavating Tibbet's Corner underpass. Stay on the left hand side of the clearing and in 30m turn left on a path into trees. This leads to the open space by the car park and Windmill.

Back

- 6 With your back to the entrance to the Windmill Museum (near the big toothed wheels) go straight ahead over the grass heading for the old stone horse trough on the other side. A few metres to the left of the trough, take the path past the notice board indicating the Windmill Nature Trail. Take the path past Nos. 2 and 3 over the bridge. After No. 4, turn left with the trail past a seat. Go past No. 6 over a bridge and keep straight ahead. At No. 8 leave the trail by keeping straight ahead on a narrow path.
- 7 In 20m, go straight over a broad stony track. Continue on a winding path through birches and young oaks until you reach a wider crossing path with a seat. There are two paths on the other side. Take the right of the two paths, the one directly behind the seat. Keep straight ahead on this path for some distance, eventually going through a wood of tall oak trees. The path gets nearer to the main road on the right, passes near to a pond on the right and crosses a track. Finally the path comes very close to the road as the road approaches the big Tibbet's Corner roundabout. Where the path curves round left here, leave the path by turning right to the edge of the road and turning left down the subway.
- 8 At a crossing path, turn right under the road and ignore a lesser path right under a road. The path curves left over the A3. Ignore a right branch signposted to Wandsworth. Follow the subway path as it goes under the next main road and emerge from the subway via a sloping path up to the roadside. Keep in the same direction on a stony path under trees with the busy main road to Putney (Tibbet's Ride) close by on your right and an area on your left bordered by dark green fencing. When the green fencing ends, turn left on a wide path with woodland on your right. At the end of the path, turn left on the road to the point where the walk began.
