Country villages, quiet lanes, meadows, woodland, churches, pubs

In Brief

You will love Rotherwick. This peaceful village seems to breathe pure country air, far from main roads. It is blessed with an ancient church and *two pubs. The houses, gardens and fields lie together in a long line on a quiet straight road. Mattingley is yet more dazzling, having some of the best thatched or timbered houses you are likely to see. It also possesses the most famous inn in the district. (*To enquire at the Falcon, ring 01256-765422, for the Coach and Horses, 01256-768976. For the Leather Bottle, it's 0118-932-6371.)

This walk can be combined with its neighbouring walk "Mattingley" to make a very satisfying 13¾ km=8½ mile walk. Unless you double back, you will miss the Leather Bottle pub but you will gain an excellent tea at the West Green House Garden. Look for the coloured notes.

There are some nettles and quite a bit of undergrowth on this walk, ruling out shorts. The author wore boots but felt that in June trainers or hiking shoes would have been just as fine. There is just one very short marshy bit assisted by a plank or two. This walk is almost stileless except for a flurry of three around West End Farm, where your dog might need to be carried.

The walk begins in the village of Rotherwick, Hampshire, postcode RG27 9BG. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

Rotherwick's name means "place of cattle" although there are none on this walk. Its church dates from the 1200s. The interior was originally timber with a brick filling, just like Mattingley which you are due to see later. The square west tower was added in the 1600s, holding six bells. The north wall has some bullet marks, a mystery since the village was not touched by the Civil War. The church has no dedication because, despite its size, it was only a "chapel of rest" attached to the mother church which is in Odiham.

- 1 Find your way to Rotherwick church at the far end of the village. Go through the little wooden gate into the churchyard and, after taking this chance to visit the church, make your way round the left-hand side, passing the ancient west door. Go through the churchyard, under the yew trees, and out through an old kissing gate into a crop field. Take a clear path straight ahead across the centre of the field. Note that you are on part of the Brenda Parker Way, a 78-mile path between Aldershot and Andover. At the end of the field, cross a tarmac lane and take a wide track opposite, running beside a wood on your right. At the corner of the wood, avoid a path ahead across the field and turn right on the track, staying close to the wood. In 400m, just before the field edge begins to curve round to the left, look to your right for a gap in the hedge.
- 2 Slip right through the gap and turn left on tarmac Mill Lane, passing a house, Winnells. Immediately, at a junction, avoid a wide track to your left and fork right, staying on this tarmac lane. All the lanes on this walk will be like this one – so peaceful you can hear birdsong all around. After 400m between ancient hedgerows, under tall oaks, the lane bends left. In 80m, at a fingerpost, turn right over a 2-plank bridge into a field. Follow the left-hand edge. At the end of the field, veer left past a marker post and veer right along the left-hand edge of the next field, thus keeping the same direction. You come past a high seat and your path zigzags right-left under power lines and through a gap into the next field. Go straight ahead, not too far from the left-hand edge, to find a gap in the far left-hand corner, coming out to tarmac Rotherfield Lane.

- 3 Turn right on the lane and stay on it for 400m until you pass under power lines. Now turn left on a tarmac drive, marked as a footpath. In 200m, just before the gate to Mill House Farm, at a fingerpost, turn right through an improvised V-stile onto a narrow footpath. The most adventurous part of your route today now begins: an easy path through varied terrain, punctuated here and there by slightly overgrown but short sections. Soon you are under trees, with bluebells in late spring. Your path goes over a hump, veering right and left through a section with an unwelcome growth of Himalayan balsam. You come over an avoidable hump, through bracken, under tall ash trees. On your left soon (not on your route) is a small metal gate leading into a large meadow of black sheep. You come over a 2-plank boardwalk and across a marshy section: shortly after, ignore a signed a path on your right which leads to a large kissing gate. You quickly reach a junction of fields with a choice of paths.
- 4 Turn right at a marker post. This easy path follows a woodland strip between distant fields. Soon you are aware of a farm track running beside you on the left. Your path soon merges with it. You finally come out, round a large metal gate, to quiet tarmac Bottle Lane at a bend. Turn right on the lane, a welcome change from the tortuous paths. In 600m, as you pass the redbrick Thackhams Farm, ignore a road junction on your left. In a further 200m, the lane begins to wheel right past another redbrick house, Moneys Farm. Leave the road here by keeping straight on along a track signed as a footpath. Shortly, you come through a wooden swing-gate (not needed if the main gate is open) into the precincts of the tastefully-converted West End Farm.
- 5 The way through the “farm” is convoluted and needs a paragraph to itself \(see inset in map\). Without approaching the buildings, turn immediately right over a stile and immediately left over another stile onto a shingle drive by a house. Go through a small wooden gate and walk along the left-hand side of a lawn. Keep close to two barns and some outhouses on your left. Just before a black shed in the corner, go left through a small wooden gate into a rough meadow. Turn left as directed and keep right in the corner. Keep going round the left-hand edge of the meadow, ignoring a large metal gate, until you meet a wooden post. Go left here over a stile into a large crop field. Turn right along the edge.
- 6 At the end of the field, take a narrow nettly path into a small meadow. Go straight ahead, over a stone bridge, on a path which rises to run in a straight line between hedges with grassy meadows on each side. The path runs beside a cypress hedge with a picket fence [\[Jun 2019: lying flat, step your way carefully across\]](#). You come between garden fences, with one especially lovely garden on your left. Cross straight over a shingle drive and through a gap in the hedge, out to the main road outside Mattingley. Cross the road carefully, down steps, to a footpath through the woods. In only 50m, keep left to come out to a tarmac lane, Red Hill. Turn right, ignoring a road junction and passing the especially attractive thatched timbered Mattingley Green Cottage on your left. At a 3-way junction, keep right, passing a parking area on your right (alternative start) and approaching Mattingley church, which must be seen, even though not precisely on your route.

If you are combining this walk with the "Mattingley" walk, skip to that walking guide now and start it from the beginning.

- 7 Just before the gate into the church, turn right on a shingle path, passing the delectable White Willows. Take the right fork, passing the Pumpkin Patch pre-school and continue on a path into woods. In 250m you cross a tarmac drive and shortly arrive on a shingle driveway. Cross a tarmac lane and resume on the grass opposite which narrows to a verge beside the main road. You quickly reach the Leather Bottle pub where you may see the first crowds of the day.

The "Leather Bottle", a classic old village inn, is open and serves food at practically any hour, every day. Six ales are usually on tap, including rarities such as Tillingbourne and Dunsfold. Food ranges from nibbles and bites to an impressive menu of mains and puddings. For more interesting details of this pub, see the sister walk "Mattingley".

- 8 After a possible sojourn at the pub, continue a short distance along the main road using a path along the verge. At the entrance to Bartletts Barn, take the second turning left, a pebble drive, signed as a footpath. Go through a wooden gate to the left of the main gate and follow a narrow grass path. Note the old grainstore in the pond on your left. Your path zigzags over a stile (or through the large wooden gate) onto a wide straight path in a lime avenue. There is a wood on your left just before the path ends at a wooden gate and a large field. Turn right along the edge. In 350m, at the end of the field, the path bends left and leads through a small metal gate. Your route is now right on a narrow path. But it is pleasant first to step to the left onto the bridge to see the fast flowing Whitewater River \(a tributary of the Lodden\) at a picturesque spot.

If you have combined this walk with the "Mattingley" walk, you will re-join this walk here.

- 9 Having turned onto the narrow path, going over a small 2-plank bridge, you pass quite close to the river before coming out into a crop field. Turn left along the edge on a wide path. Just before a large metal gate, veer right as directed on a long straight wide path. The path is lined with newly-planted maples in a bold investment in the pleasure of future generations. At the end, leave the wide path as it bends left by going straight ahead across the grass, over a pair of plank bridges, on a narrow nettly path under trees, leading out to the main Reading Road.

- 10 Cross the road carefully, turn left and, in 80m, fork right at a signpost on a footpath, going past a redundant stile. Your path crosses a meadow diagonally, going under power lines. When you reach the far side and a line of trees, avoid the path ahead into the next meadow and instead turn immediately right, just before the trees, up the left-hand edge, staying in the same meadow. In the corner, keep ahead on a path through the woodland of Street End Copse. After a concrete bridge, your path elbows right. After 150m or so, you come between posts to a junction on the left. Turn diagonally left here on a long straight slightly narrower path through the woods, with a thin wire fence on your left. After 250m you can glimpse a small gate, less than 100m ahead. Leave the path here by forking right on an unmarked, but quite distinct, path into the dense woods.

- 11 This branching path is obviously so well used that it is more like the main path. It veers right, thus completing a net right turn. Stay on the main path avoiding side turnings. It leads through a patch of bracken 2019: [over a dead tree trunk] and turns right and left over a bank, quickly leading out between posts to the road in Rotherwick. Turn left to begin a pleasant saunter along the length of The Street in this pleasant village – so that last short cut was quite deliberate. Depending on where you began the walk, your route goes over a crossroads, past the historic Wyk House, past (or into) The Falcon, a smart old pub with a stylish garden and locally-sourced food, open all day Fri-Sun. After more cottages, some with flowers for sale, a phonebox “library” and the Village Hall, on your left is the Coach and Horses, more of a “local’s pub” run by H&W. The School and the Church are the final buildings of the village where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Rotherwick lies close to Hook on the M3 and could hardly be easier to get to. Get off at Exit 5 and follow signs for Reading, Hook. After nearly ½ mile, keep right at the roundabout, to go past some impressive industrial units till, after another 1½ miles you are in open country. At a bend, look for a sign for Rotherwick and turn left here. Turn left in the village and park discreetly somewhere along the road towards the church.

By bus/train: bus 333 from Basingstoke to Rotherwick and Mattingley, Wed-Fri. Check the timetables.
