Villages, views, woodland, pub, historic houses and cottages

In Brief

The village of Well in Hampshire has several historic and charming cottages and the friendly Chequers Inn is made from a pair of them, with a front patio under a spreading vine that gives this very English corner a slightly continental feel. Beer is H&W and there are both à la carte and brasserie type menus with an emphasis on seafood, including lobster and dressed crab. The pub is open all day at weekends. To reserve, ring 01256-862605.

The walk takes you on easy paths over hills with great views and also shows you the best of another village, Lower Froyle, from an corner not normally seen by passing visitors.

There is at least one overgrown path on this walk, so bare legs are not advisable, but any other kind of attire should be fine. After a long wet spell, you will find that boots are a must as the byway in section 3 can be muddy in parts. Your dog is very welcome on this walk.

The walk begins in Lower Froyle, Hampshire, postcode GU34 4LJ, near the A31 Farnham-Winchester road, one mile west and north of Bentley. Park considerately in the centre of the village, preferably in Ryebridge Lane, near the village hall. This is the road that branches away at a little signpost near the village noticeboard in the direction of Upper Froyle. You can of course park at the pub, preferably off-road opposite it rather than in the pub car park. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

of the field, go through a kissing-gate, over a 3-plank bridge, through another kissing-gate and along the right-hand side of a meadow. You have great views here east into Sussex and north to the big copses behind the village which you will soon see from the other side. Go over a stile by a metal gate and turn right on a tarmac drive.

- 2 Continue straight ahead past a metal gate and past the farm on Saintbury Hill, onto a wide track, soon with views all around. You will be following this wide more-or-less straight track for over 1 km. Along the way, you pass a wood on your right followed by a long field, Nearly 1 km along this track you may notice an irrelevant dilapidated signpost at a junction on your left. Your track winds its way through more woodland and, in another 150m, it comes out into a large green field where it curves away left. This is where you leave the track. (As a guide, there is a partly hidden fingerpost on your right.) Fork right here across the grass with the green field on your left and fine woods on view straight ahead. At the next corner, your path winds right down into a wooded area and then wheels left through a beautiful area of varied trees and grass until you reach a large sloping field. Keep right along the edge of the field (a popular area for skylarks), passing a fingerpost, At the top, keep straight across the field on a clear path as highlighted by a post with a yellow arrow. At the bottom, keep straight ahead to pass through the hedging to reach a road. Turn left here.
- 3 In 50m, at a road junction, turn right uphill, signed Long Sutton. The first house, curiously named "Bumpers", is home to some friendly dogs of different sizes who may well come out to greet you. In 300m or so, where a road joins you from the left, turn right on a track signposted as a byway. In 500m, your track enters the edge of some woods. Ignore footpaths left and right

4 The lane takes you past the stately Manor Farm and into the sleepy village of Well. The well that gives its name to this place is at the crossroads, but the current structure is relatively new so it must have existed in earlier forms. Among the few houses here are several gems, such as the Old Cottage, dated 1686. For the Chequers Inn, turn left on the road for 100m or so. You need to retrace your steps to the crossroads to resume the walk.

5 After refreshment, continue straight on at the crossroads (or turn right if you did not visit the Chequers), in the direction of Dippenhall. Follow this quiet lane under grid wires. After $\frac{2}{3}$ km you later pass No Mans Land Cottage on your right. The various hedgerow trees on your left have grown to a magnificent height giving the lane a deep atmosphere. In another 250m, turn right onto a narrow lane, Husseys Lane, noting a blue unsuitable for heavy goods vehicles sign. In 250m, where the tarmac lane suddenly bends sharp left, leave it by continuing straight ahead on an earthy track.

6 Your track runs between fields, then down through woodland, only to rise again where it is rather stony underfoot. At the top of the gradient, in the field on your left, there is a rustic bench seat where you can rest and take in the great views to the east as far as the North Downs into West Sussex. You pass more woodland on the right as Lower Froyle comes into view. Avoid a footpath on the right here. The lane becomes tarmac as you pass the first few charming cottages of Lower Froyle, including a group of converted oasts on your right. Oast houses are usually associated with Kent but can be found in many southern counties. You pass other contrasting properties of immense character, a sight usually missed by visitors who come by the main road. Finally a pond is on your right, usually with a brace of resident white ducks, as you come to a T-junction. Turn right on the main road. In 500m, you reach a junction on your left where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Lower Froyle is near the A31 Farnham-Alton Road. Leave the road at Bentley which is signed. Go west through Bentley on a road that bends north and takes you in less than a mile, passing the renowned Anchor Inn, into the centre of Lower Froyle. At the little signpost in the village centre, turn left in the direction of Upper Froyle but park immediately near the village hall.
