Woodland, green meadows, quiet lanes, pub

In Brief

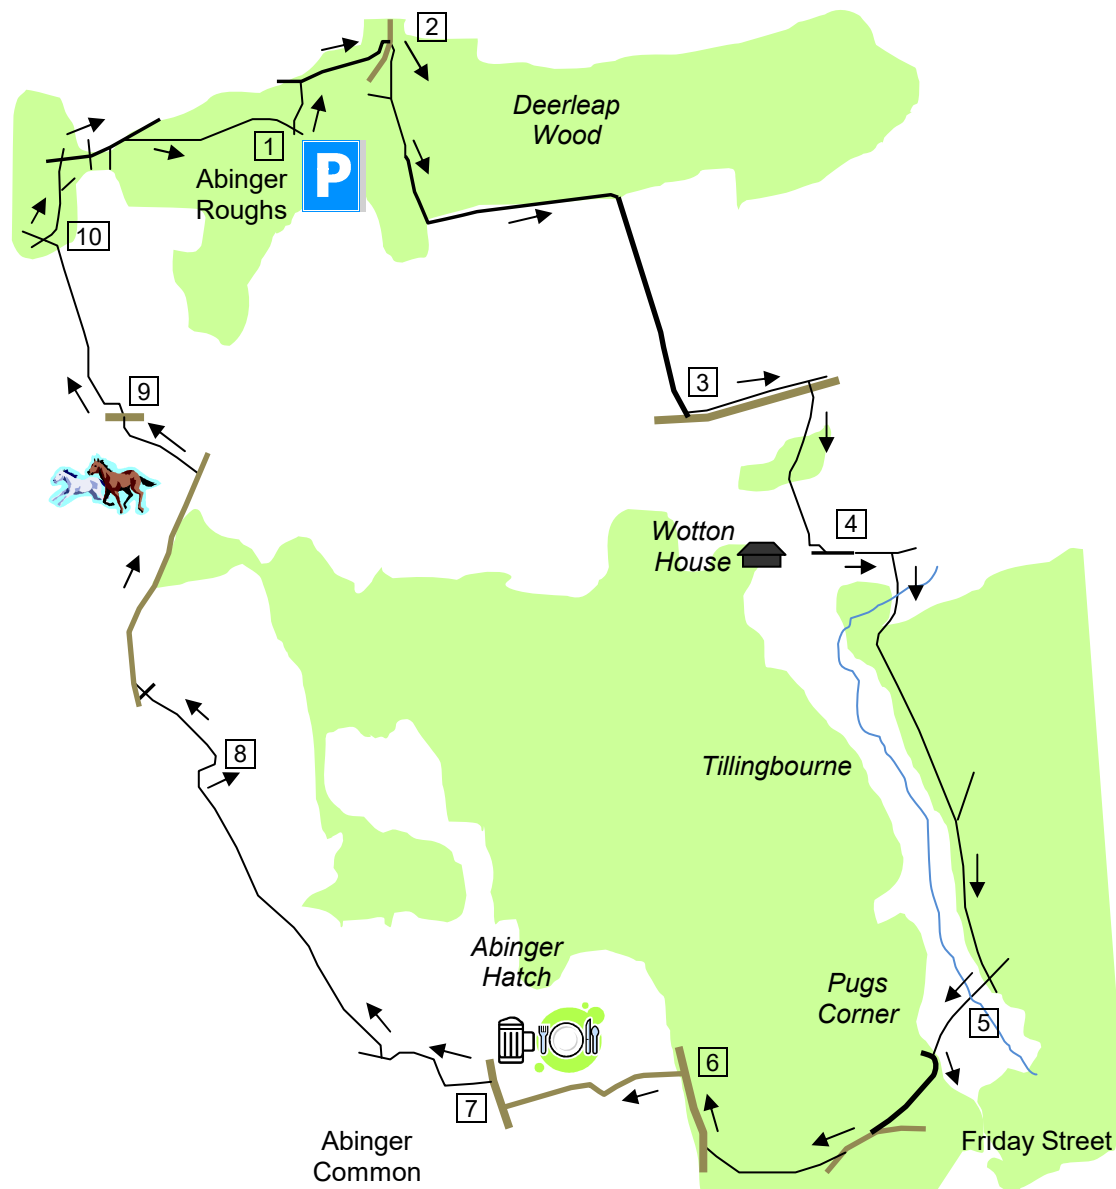

This is a gem of a walk starting in a familiar spot near the foot of the North Downs and taking you on paths that may not be familiar, even to seasoned users of this site. It shows off some of the gentler and most delightful features of this part of Surrey, without any steep gradients, making it an ideal stroll for anyone who would like to spend two or three stress-free hours in the country. The highpoint of the walk is a visit to the oldest village in the UK! You can treat this walk as a pub walk since the Abinger Hatch forms the half-way stop. (For enquiries, ring 01306-730737).

?? In a wet winter, such as Jan 2018, you definitely need good boots to keep out the wet, especially in the area around Friday Street. In high summer, there may be some dense patches of nettles along the path before Raikes Lane and beside the main road: you may find a hiking pole useful here. At other times there are few nettles or brambles on this walk, so shorts can be worn. Your dog can come too, with a lead of course, provided he is not too large to be lifted over one or two of the stiles.

The walk begins in the Abinger Roughs National Trust car park, grid ref TQ111480, nearest postcode RH5 6QS. You could also begin the walk near the Abinger Hatch pub (postcode RH5 6HZ). For more details see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 Go to the end of the Abinger Roughs car park (furthest from the road). But don't go through the big 1-bar barrier at the end: instead, turn right through a gap in the fence and go up a sandy path, past a picnic table and down to a memorial with a stone cross. This cross commemorates bishop Samuel ("soapy Sam") Wilberforce (son of abolitionist William) who was killed in a fall from his horse in 1873. For more details see the walk "Abinger and Wotton". Ahead of you is the 16th-century Leasers Barn, preserved by the National Trust and used to rear livestock in the traditional way. Turn right on a wide path through the woods. In 200m, just before a road, keep left past a steel barrier and thence out to the road. On the other side of the road you can see two fingerposts, one a bit to the left and one a bit to the right. Go to the one on the right, taking a footpath into the woods.
- 2 Your path runs briefly through some undergrowth, then on a lovely path through Deerleap Wood with a mixture of every kind of tree. At a fingerpost, keep straight ahead, ignoring a right turn. You come out onto a dirt track by an isolated house, Deersleap Cottages. Keep left and follow the track with the wood on your left. You reach a T-junction with a little house ahead. Turn left and keep straight on along a narrow path that runs just inside the wood. [2014: you have to go round a fallen tree trunk.] There are so many pheasant chicks running free you wonder why we don't see them on all the supermarket shelves. You pass a house with chickens and another with a garden which has seen better days. At a T-junction, turn right on a tarmac lane, West Lane. You pass a big arable farm on your right. Finally you reach the main A25 road.

- 3 Turn left on the road using the tarmac footway which soon has a hedge to shelter you from the traffic. You need to measure just over 250m. (That's about 400 paces or 300 yards or 4 minutes walking.) Here, look out for a small gap in the hedge on your right. This is the first slightly tricky move because the gap sometimes gets clogged with undergrowth and you have to watch out for traffic on the busy road. Cross the road carefully to a narrow path opposite leading in 10m to a stile. Cross the stile and go straight ahead with a wire fence on your right, over another stile and take an attractive but rather twisty grassy path through conifers and maples. You come down to a stile. Go over the stile into a sloping pasture belonging to Manor Farm. If there are cattle in the field, they are the very gentle belted Galloway variety. You have a wide view of the Greensand hills ahead. Follow a faint path down the centre. At the bottom, go by another stile (usually not needed now because of a wide gap) and continue down to a tarmac drive by a stone wall.

- 4 Turn left on the drive. On the right, the drive leads to the historic prestigious Wotton House, a huge hotel and convention centre, rather soulless but with a wonderful belvedere. In 100m, just after Bentley Cottage, go right over a stile at a 3-way fingerpost. Follow this pleasant grassy path down the left-hand side of a meadow. The path takes you across the Tillingbourne Stream, over a stile and uphill through trees, up shallow steps. At the top of the steps, bear right over a crossing track, past a metal gate, to continue uphill. After 400m on this wide path between wire fences, another wide path joins you, coming down from the left. Continue onwards with views right of the water meadows of the Tillingbourne. In another 400m your path takes you over a stile beside a large wooden gate to a 4-way junction. This is the most charming spot in Surrey and five other walks in this series go through it. Straight ahead, if you want to make a detour, is the Friday Street lake and the Stephan Langton pub.

- 5 Turn right at the junction, going across an old bridge-weir over the Tillingbourne. Go through a swing-gate and follow the woodland path to a tarmac drive of a house, Pugs Corner. Turn left on the drive which curves right through Millpond Copse uphill, runs straight with tall pines on your right and, after 200m, reaches a tarmac lane. Turn right on the lane (called Friday Street, like the hamlet) immediately ignoring a private track on your right. Immediately after this track, fork right on a narrow unsigned path that runs parallel to the lane. Shortly, the path veers away from the lane and runs above a sunken track on your left. Soon your path joins the track and follows a deep-set course down to a road, the aptly-named Hollow Lane. Turn right on the lane which soon runs between two old gateposts which have survived from a quieter age.
- 6 In 150m, turn left on the first quiet narrow lane (unnamed but actually called Donkey Lane). The lane rises gently, then descends, goes round a double bend passing The Glebe House and then rises again. After 400m in total, it arrives at a T-junction with Abinger Lane. Turn right, immediately reaching the Abinger Hatch. Welcome to the oldest village in the UK!

This area was inhabited since mesolithic times, around 7000 years ago. The site is just south of here, off Hollow Lane, and was excavated by none other than Louis Leakey who famously traced man's ancestry in Africa. The parish includes Abinger Hammer and Sutton Abinger, but also extends for ten miles to the Sussex border. When the Normans came, a church already stood here. The oldest part of the current structure of St James's church dates from 1086 with many later additions. In 1944 a flying bomb badly damaged the church and in 1964 the tower was damaged by lightning, both giving the church a phoenix-like reputation.

The "Abinger Hatch" is a classic local, attracting trippers from way beyond. The food is quite a business here with a well-thought-out menu. Four rotated guest beers are served. Inside is the long airy bar area and a room furnished like a New York loft. Outside, white ducks paddle the stream, spilling into the road and a long lawn with plentiful benches give scope to al fresco quaffing and seasonal barbequeing. The "Hatch" is open all day at weekends, for drinks at least.

- 7 After your break, turn left through an old kissing-gate beside the lichgate, passing the church on your right. At the other side of the churchyard, go through a pair of ornate metal gates onto a gravel path. Your path runs by a house on your left with good views right to the North Downs. After a generous wooden swing-gate, keep ahead for just 10m. Here, leave the level path, which continues straight ahead, and instead fork right downhill on a path between bracken. Follow this path beside a long green meadow on your right. Later, looking back, you have another view of St James's church. After two long fields, you pass a smaller field, followed by a dividing hedge-row and another small field. Care: do not stray! Do not continue into a large grassy meadow visible ahead but fork right diagonally up the centre of this second small field. In summer this field is a mass of wild flowers with some garden flowers – cosmos and sunflowers – thrown in.

- 8 At the top, turn left beside a wire fence with a crop field on the other side. After 200m, the path crosses a cinder track. In high summer, the nettles may grow quite thick here and a walking pole may come in handy. It now goes down through trees to Raikes Lane. Turn right on this road, in 200m passing a settlement called The Dene. Go straight past a junction on your right with Abinger Lane and, just after a concrete-and-steel railing, go left over a stile beside a metal gate into a horse pasture. The horses here are very friendly because the local children ride them, but don't worry if you don't like horses: just ignore them. In the far right corner, go right over a stile to the A25 main road.

- 9 Cross this busy road carefully and take a narrow footpath opposite, a fraction left. The path leads to a cinder drive: veer left on it, passing to the right of a large brick shed. Follow the path through shrubs with wild sage, blackberries and the tall yellow flowers of verbascum. Go through a metal kissing-gate beside an old wooden gate into a meadow. Occasionally, walkers have seen cattle in this pasture. If you see some and they worry you, you can avoid the centre of the meadow and instead follow the woodland edge to the right. It still leads round to Abinger Roughts and back to the car park. Follow a faint path up across the centre of the meadow, heading for some woodland. Your target is just to the left of a tall scots pine where, under a large turkey oak, you will find a metal kissing-gate. Go through the gate into Abinger Roughs. This radiant piece of ancient woodland is well worth exploring, now or another day.

- 10 In only 50m, at a junction of paths by a post with arrows, turn sharp right on a path which is part of the Nature Trail (in reverse direction). Care: do not stray! Follow this clear sandy path as it curves left and runs straight ahead slightly uphill. Just before you reach the trees, avoid a right fork and keep ahead uphill to reach a wide crossing path by a marker post. Turn right on the path downhill, following a blue arrow. Keep straight ahead over a crossing track by a field gate, ignoring a yellow NT arrow pointing right. In 15m, avoid another yellow NT arrow on the right. In another 25m, fork right in the direction of a yellow arrow on a wide path, passing the Witch's Broom Tree (a twisted beech, a past favourite with children for climbing before health-and-safety). In 350m, this path leads back to the Abinger Roughs car park where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: To get to the Abinger Roughs National Trust car park from the London area, either do as follows: Take the A25 Dorking-Guildford road and turn off north on White Down Lane, 1 mile after of the Wotton Hatch (if coming from Dorking) or 1 mile after Abinger Hammer (if coming from the Guildford area). The lane is opposite a signpost for Abinger Common but is not itself signed. Go 650m=700 yds and turn left into the car park, marked with a little wooden NT signboard.

Or take the following scenic route: At the A3-M25 junction, take the slip road in the direction of Guildford. (If coming from London, you must come off at the slip road but keep straight on.) In about 100m, leave the slip road by turning left onto a narrow road signposted Effingham which runs through forest by the Boldermere lake. Follow the road all the way to a T-junction. Turn right and immediately left over a humpback bridge and past Effingham Junction station. Follow the road all the way to Bookham and Effingham villages, going straight ahead at two mini-roundabouts. Go over traffic lights over the main A246 and follow a rather narrow road that runs past some fine properties, down a valley and up again, and straightens and narrows even more to a crossroads with the Ranmore Road where you must give way. Go straight over, passing White Downs car park on the right as you enter thick forest. The road crosses the Downs and narrows in parts rather dramatically to a single lane where you hope not to meet another vehicle. The lane twists and goes over a railway bridge. After the bridge, you need to look out for the entrance to the car park on the right after about 300m=350 yds. (It is easy to miss the little NT signboard and overshoot the entrance.)
