Woodland, heath, lake, rivers, bird sanctuary, views

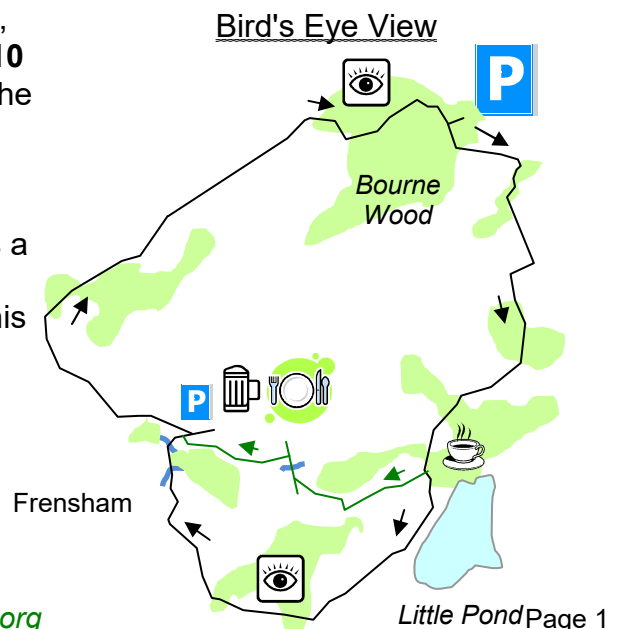

In Brief

This walk takes you on a remarkable hike through the isolated pine-clad sandy hills of western Surrey. It features a 4-mile stretch of almost unbroken woodland and heath. For a lunch stop, you have an excellent pub near Frensham village (for enquiries, ring the Holly Bush on 01252-447060). Because of the sandy terrain, the good wide paths and the leaf cover, this walk has long dry sections. So it is also a good winter walk, when views are enhanced.

There are no unavoidable nettles or brambles on this walk, so any kind of clothing is fine. The good terrain allows sensible shoes or trainers in dry weather if preferred to boots. But in rainy conditions there is some water flowing down the footpath after the pub and some splashing in the woodland after the school, enough to make ankle boots necessary. With no main roads and no stiles (one on the short cut), this is a good walk for your dog.

The walk begins at the Bourne Wood car park, near Farnham, Surrey, nearest postcode GU10 2BH, grid ref SU 859 445. The car park is on the Tilford Road, about 2 miles south of Farnham and 1 mile north of Tilford. You can also start near the pub in Shortfield Common, postcode GU10 3BJ, grid ref SU 843 423, where there is a car park near the playing fields 150 yds east of the pub. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

*This may be your first visit to the Forestry Commission's Bourne Wood but it's almost certain you've seen it before. The reason is the dozens of films and TV productions that have used the wood as a location, including Gladiator, several Harry Potters and Ridley Scott's Robin Hood. The name comes from a branch of the nearby River Wey whose source was known as the "Bourne".*

Leg 1: Bourne Wood to Pierrepont 3½ km=2¼ miles

1 Enter Bourne Wood from the car park by the main track through a metal barrier. In 40m, at the first crossing, turn left on a good path. After 150m, at a 4-way fingerpost, keep straight on, crossing a wide sandy track and descending in 30m to a marker post with two arrows. Turn left here on a bridleway, following the left-pointing arrow. In 80m, at a marker post beside a small metal gate, keep straight on. You will be staying just outside the enclosure, following the wire fence on your right, passing (regardless) several small gates in the fence, tempting you to visit the RSPB reserve. The Royal Society for the Protection of Birds purchased this nature reserve and is restoring it for the benefit of scarce heathland species such as the nightjar, woodlark, Dartford warbler and tree pipit. (If you repeat this walk, you may like to find a short cut through the reserve. But you will see more of Bourne Wood on the return leg.) The marked bridleway suddenly bends left by a large metal gate. Ignore this left turn and continue straight ahead, thus leaving the official bridleway. The path goes uphill, curving right. Keep the wire fence on your right as a large green meadow appears ahead whilst your path veers right again at a T-junction beside the fence, passing another little gate. After an upward incline, the fence bends right at a sharp corner. Say goodbye to the fence here by keeping straight ahead here through an area of restored coppices. 400m later, at a marker post, keep straight on to come down to The Reeds Road.

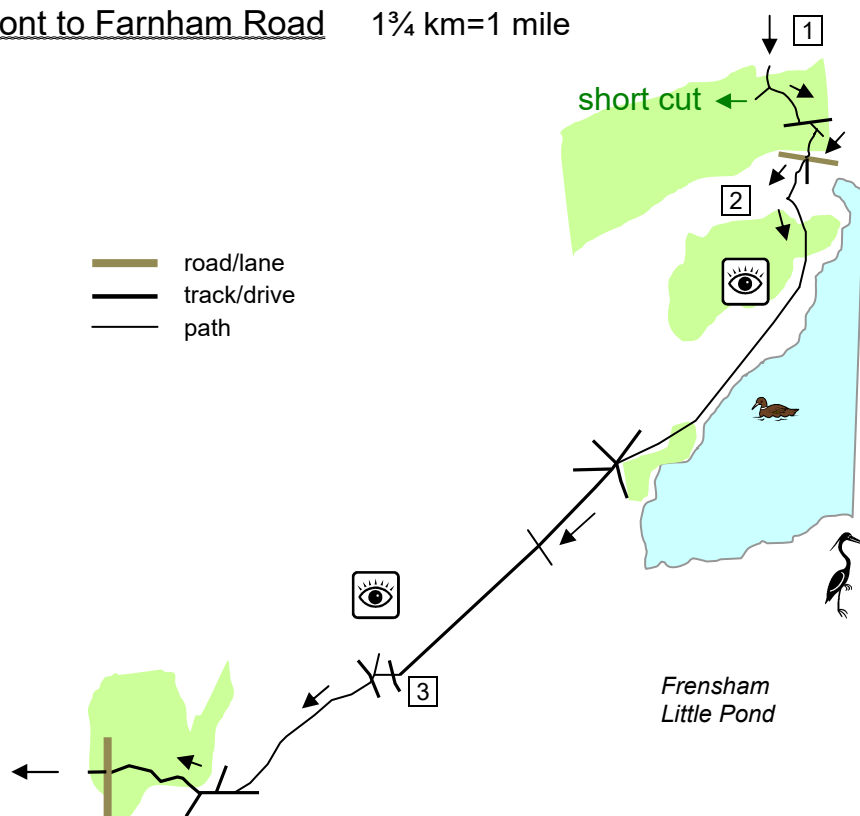

2 Cross straight over the road and veer right on a bridleway opposite. In 150m, just before the entrance to a house, fork left, following the blue arrow. Your track continues on a narrower course between fences in Reeds Farm and soon widens. You are now walking across the expansive heath of Tankersford Common with isolated trees and patches of woodland. After about 600m, your path descends between banks. Ignore a swing-gate and permissive path on your right to reach farm buildings. Pierrepont Farm is a living, working farm run by the Countryside Restoration Trust, a charity promoting farming friendly to wildlife. Keep left at the farm, passing the tiny Frensham Brewery, run by a husband-and-wife team, producing Forager and Rambler ales, available only in local pubs. A grassy path leads between fences to the banks of the River Wey. Here, a long wooden bridge takes you across the rushing river in a perfectly delightful spot. You pass water meadows and a cottage on your right. Almost immediately after the cottage, just before a tarmac lane ahead, opposite a wooden gate, on your right is a marker post with a blue arrow [2014: the right-pointing blue arrow is missing].

Decision point. There is a short cut now taking you direct to Shortfield Common for refreshments. If you wish to take it, omitting Frensham Little Pond, the church and some of the best heathland, skip to near the end of this text and do the Shortfield Short Cut. Otherwise continue with Leg 2 below.

Leg 2: Pierrepont to Farnham Road 1¾ km=1 mile

- 1 Ignore the marker post and continue along the track regardless. (Care! some walkers find the next few turns tricky.) The track curves right to meet a very wide track. Turn sharp left on it. In only 10m, turn right on a narrow path and immediately fork right again on another narrow path. Cross straight over a tarmac lane, Priory Lane, onto a private drive but immediately go right at a marker post between wooden uprights onto a mossy open space. Veer left, aiming just to the left of a tall stand of pines. As you come over a hillock, you have a great view of Frensham Little Pond.

Frensham Little Pond, like its big brother, was built in the 1200s to supply the fish-loving Bishop of Winchester at Farnham Castle. He ordered the bondsmen to build a dam but they refused because this extra work was “not warranted by custom” (not tilling, harvesting etc.). This might have been the first recorded industrial dispute in English history. Eventually they settled for a small payment. The pond is now a nature sanctuary belonging to the National Trust.

The Tern Café, on your left, serves tea, coffee and snacks most days.

- 2 Follow the wide sandy path near the shoreline, passing several wooden benches from where you can enjoy the watery serenity. Your path is joined by another sandy path and seems to veer away from the shoreline. After about ½ km total you come to a wide junction of six paths. Take the second path from the left, almost straight ahead, the one that you can see ascending the hill ahead. Along the way, your path crosses a wide track at a low barrier. Finally, at the top, you meet a wide crossing path by a bench.

- 3 Cross the path and go straight over the grass to another sandy path. Cross this second path to another wooden bench from where you have extensive views of the Great Pond and the surrounding country. Straight ahead, you can see the next part of your route: a narrow winding path below in the valley. Descend on this path, going steeply down a grassy slope. This path ends at a T-junction with a wide sandy bridleway. Turn right on this bridleway and keep straight ahead, avoiding a path on your right and a path on your left. (Your path is marked with a blue-topped post as no. 43.) The path goes through a large wooden gate to the main A287 Farnham Road.

Leg 3: Farnham Road to Shortfield Common 2¼ km=1½ miles

- 1 Cross the road carefully to a signposted bridleway on the other side, passing a low barrier. Follow this very wide sandy path uphill to meet two posts with arrows at a rather complex junction with a crossing path. Keep just to the right of the first marker post, ignoring a narrow path on the right, and cross straight over a diagonal crossing path marked with blue arrows as a bridleway. The yellow arrow now marks your nice clear path, somewhat narrower and running through pines and gorse. When you reach a lovely mossy crossing path running in a clearing, keep straight over, still following the yellow arrow. Your path twists and turns through more pines and birch and goes downhill to a road, Bacon Lane. Turn left on the road.

- 2 In 20m, go right at a fingerpost through a barrier on a footpath. Another barrier leads to a residential road. Cross it to a signposted enclosed footpath opposite. Garden fences are on your right and an adventure playground on your left. The path becomes a tarmac lane, Lovers Lane, and leads out to a road in Frensham village. Turn left on the road towards the church. Your route is a track on the right just before the churchyard. But first, a visit to the church is an absolute must.

Frensham is shrouded in mystery. The name means "Frena's place" but who Frena was is uncertain. Frensham Church was "moved" in the year 1239 from some other place but no one knows from where. Most of the building is from the 1300s, of local sandstone, the chancel (at the altar end) being the oldest part. The organ was paid for by a generous lady in the late 1800s, the music during the previous two centuries having been provided by the local band.

- 3 Follow the tarmac track to the right of the church, beside the cemetery, with water meadows on your right. At the end, veer right on a narrower path. Your path runs beside a river on your left and crosses it by a long bridge. After the bridge, stay on the main path, ignoring a little gate and footpath on your right. Very shortly you join a tarmac drive. At a T-junction with a wide drive, turn left and immediately right again on a footpath. This narrow path runs between a hedge and a large field on your right. It leads past a derelict house, over a bridge across a stream to a road, Shortfield Common Road. Turn right on the road, passing a road junction and quickly reaching the Holly Bush.

The Holly Bush was a characterful local but underwent a transformation a year or two ago. You may like the result, especially if food is a priority or if perhaps you are dropping in early to have breakfast. It opens at 8.30 a.m. (9.30 weekends) and is as much a coffee bar as a pub. Service is reported to be a bit over-relaxed so you may need to holler.

Leg 4: Shortfield Common to Bourne Wood 5½ km=3½ miles

- 1 After your break, retrace your steps westwards along the road for 80m. (If you began the walk here, that's right with your back to the pub.) Fork right on very quiet West End Lane, going straight over a crossroads shortly and ignoring footpaths right and left. Note the clock on Crawford Cottage, showing the correct time. After 500m, as the lane curves left just after Downlands Farm, turn right past a metal barrier onto a narrow footpath. This path may be quite wet at first where a stream shares the route but the pebbly surface keeps it fairly mud-free. The path runs uphill between hedges and goes through another metal barrier to a tarmac lane. Cross the lane to a path opposite which runs beside a garden fence and lead to another lane. Turn right on the lane uphill. Shortly you pass between buildings and playing fields of a well-known co-educational private school and sixth-form college.

Frensham Heights School was founded in 1925 along progressive lines. Famous former pupils include: Blue Peter presenter Valerie Singleton; many actors such as the Pertwees of Doctor Who and Dad's Army fame and Jim Sturgess (One Day, The Way Back, Cloud Atlas); Pink Floyd drummer Nick Mason; firefighter, model and bounty huntress Domino Harvey (expelled); comedian Jack Dee; magician David Berglas; rave host and convicted fraudster Edward Ormus Sharrington (self-styled Lord) "Fast Eddie" Davenport.

Continue to a T-junction with a major road. Cross straight over the road to Switchback Lane but immediately turn right at a fingerpost on a footpath.

- 2 The footpath takes you past a garden on your left, over a wooden bridge and into woodland. There is a boardwalk and a 2-plank bridge as your path runs between a large meadow on your left and woodland and a stream on your right. May be waterlogged in wet conditions! Take care: this section may be slippery! Finally you reach Gardener's Hill Road. Turn left and, in 30m, right on another road, Frensham Vale and follow it to its end in 1 km. This road is sometimes quiet whilst on other days you can count the Range Rovers, all through a handsome pinetum of musky heath. At the end, with a footway, passing houses close and distant, you reach the A287 Frensham Road. Cross carefully straight over the road and take a tarmac lane opposite, Latchwood Lane, marked (to discourage through traffic) as a cul-de-sac. You pass a dell of bungalows and, in 400m, reach a tarmac lane, Old Frensham Road. Turn right and, in 15m, turn left into Sable Wood (identified by a flimsy laminated sign), the start of your final woodland trek. Sable Wood is privately owned and the owner is restoring it by culling invasive species and planting a mixture of native woodland species.
- 3 In 100m, at a marker post with yellow arrows, fork right. Your path passes a garden on your right and then goes up a long series of steps, followed by some natural steps. After a taxing ascent you reach a wide path at a T-junction by a marker post. Turn right on this path. You are now back in Bourne Wood. The path quickly levels out and, after 130m, you reach another marker post with an extremely wide path on your left. Turn left on this path, walking between two imposing lines of pine trees. In 250m, the path becomes surfaced and bends right. By staying on this surfaced path, you would reach the car park in 500m but this guide takes you on a more interesting course keeping to the high ground a little longer.
- 4 Leave the surfaced path by continuing straight ahead, passing an open area on your left. Avoid a left fork downhill and keep close to the pines on your right. When you reach another open space (more grassy this time), keep straight ahead. You have a steep drop on your right and you need to stay close to this at all times. In 120m after the grassy space your path begins to descend and curves right. You can see some paths down in the valley below. Veer slightly left and go quite steeply down till you meet a wide sandy path in the valley. Turn right on the path. In 80m, at a wide crossing track, turn left, arriving immediately at the Car Park where the walk began.

For final refreshments, the "Barley Mow" in Tilford and the "Donkey" at Charles-hill (which you may have passed earlier by car) are your nearest good places.

Shortfield Short Cut 2¼ km=1½ miles

Take this short cut if you want to take the shortest route from Pierrepont to the pub at Shortfield Common. However, you have a short stretch on a narrow road and you will miss the Pond and some beautiful heath with great views.

Turn right at the marker post on a narrow path into woods. Your path runs for 600m with a meadow visible on your right, to meet a tarmac lane, Priory Lane, where the smaller car park is just on your left. Turn right on the lane and follow it – carefully as it is rather narrow and carries frequent traffic – going round a left bend and passing some attractive cottages. Finally you reach the main A287 Farnham Road. Turn right on the road, going over a bridge across the river. Just after a bus stop, turn left through the entrance to a big house, Millbridge Court. Take a narrow path that runs along the right-hand side of the main house, close to the wall. The path runs between wire fences and soon rises steeply, going through a modern kissing gate to the corner of some playing fields. Keep straight ahead along the grass with a wire fence and the playing fields on your right. Just before the end of the playing fields, there is a second kissing gate on your right. (You can go right through this gate, straight over, up a bank, round the cricket pitch, wheeling left to a car park and thence to the road just before the pub.) Keep left down a slope and veer right again with a grassy meadow on your left, going through a modern kissing gate. Continue along a high path through woods, near garden fences, with a wide grassy space down on your left. Your path takes you over a stile, veers right through holly and takes you out through a barrier to Shortfield Common Road. Turn right on the road, immediately reaching the Holly Bush pub.

Getting there

By car: the Bourne Wood car park, on the Tilford Road, can be reached either from Farnham and the A31 or from Elstead and the A3. From Farnham, just west of the town, turn off the A31 at the traffic lights, signposted Hindhead, Frensham, going over the railway crossing near the station. The car park is $1\frac{2}{3}$ miles on the right. If coming from the A3, leave it to go through Elstead. Keep straight on through the village in the direction Farnham. Exactly 1 mile after the Donkey pub, take the third road on the left, Tilford Street, signposted Tilford. In $\frac{1}{4}$ mile, at a bend, turn right on Sheephatch Lane. Follow it for 1 mile and turn right at a T-junction on Tilford Road. The car park is 600m=700 yds on the left.

By bus/train: bus 19 runs between Haslemere and Farnham rail stations along the Farnham Road, not Sundays. Check the timetables.
