Woodland, grassy meadows, views, historic house

In Brief

This is an easy walk for any time of the year. It takes you from the cosy villages of Effingham and Bookham in quite rapid changes to the much wilder forested area just below the North Downs. On the way back, it passes by one of the great historical houses of this area.

The paths on this walk vary between woodland trails, pleasant grass and stony tracks. In summer this walk was dry, but in wet or wintry conditions you will find several muddy patches when normal walking shoes would be inadequate. There are just a few patches of nettles and tall undergrowth in summer which make shorts uncomfortable. The stile count is average. You could also take a small dog, two of the stiles being an ordeal for a larger one.

The walk begins in Church Street in Effingham village, postcode KT24 5LZ. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

Effingham gets its name from a Saxon noble called Aeffing. The church of St Lawrence dates from the 1100s and 1200s but is much altered.

- 1 Walk past the church on your left and turn right on Crossways to the main road. Turn left on the road for just 10m. Before a line of shops, turn right on a signposted track. Soon, on reaching a field, ignore a footpath on the right. Continue on this footpath between hedges and fields. Soon the official bridleway goes across a field and veers left to the corner. On the rare occasions when the field is planted, you may have to turn left along the side of the field and right along the verge. You pass a house and reach a wide track. Turn right on the track which soon runs beside more houses. Note the flowerpot ploughman. Continue as the track curves left towards the main A246 road. Just before the road, turn right on a bridleway running parallel to the road. Where the bridleway finally emerges onto the road, turn right for 15m, cross the road carefully and turn left by a small wooden gate on a footpath next to Milestone Farm.

- 2 Follow the rather rough footpath beside a goat pen, through a small wooden gate, between fences and over a stile [2017: broken and lying on the ground], into a rough grassy meadow. You will be walking from here almost dead straight for 700m into a small wood. Cross straight across on a clearly marked path. There is a sign telling you to watch out for golf balls. The path crosses straight over a fairway with a reservoir pond on your left. It goes over a crossing path then across the centre of a cereal crop field [May 2017: no visible path: go round to the left to find the gap in the hedge]. It then leads you through a gap in a hedge, straight across the centre of another large cereal field [May 2017: no visible path: veer left around the edge of the field until you reach a gap and a fingerpost in a hedge] and through another gap in a hedge. You are now on the golf course again, in an area of rough grass. Your direction is acutely diagonally right [May 2017: path planted over: walk round right-hand edge], gently uphill, to an isolated group of small trees by a golf tee and a bench, where you will pass a fingerpost. Now take a path in the same direction across more rough grass, heading for another golf tee where you can see a small wooden hut and some woodland. When you reach them you will notice a drinking fountain on your left. The hut conceals a bench seat where you can watch the golfers teeing off unseen. With the hut 10m on your right, go through a gap and immediately turn left on a narrow path into the wood. In only 15m, you reach a marker post at a crosspaths. Turn sharp right here.

3 The path comes out of the little wood in 25m. Keep the same direction diagonally across the next fairway, passing close to a sand bunker on your left, aiming for a post with a yellow arrow just visible at the tree line ahead. Follow the path deep into Six Acre Copse, ignoring all turnings off, however tempting. In about 300m, you are walking within sight of a meadow on the left. After 500m and along a short section between railings, the official path bends sharp left to a stile into the meadow, runs along the right-hand side and re-enters Pump Pond Wood over another stile. However, if you want to avoid the stiles, you can keep straight ahead on an unofficial narrow path which snakes its way round several fallen trees and reaches the same point. After a further 200m or so [2016: over a fallen tree], the path is joined by a bridleway coming from the left at a marker post, then later curves right and comes out to a drive by a house. Turn immediately left on a narrow path through trees which soon becomes fenced on both sides.

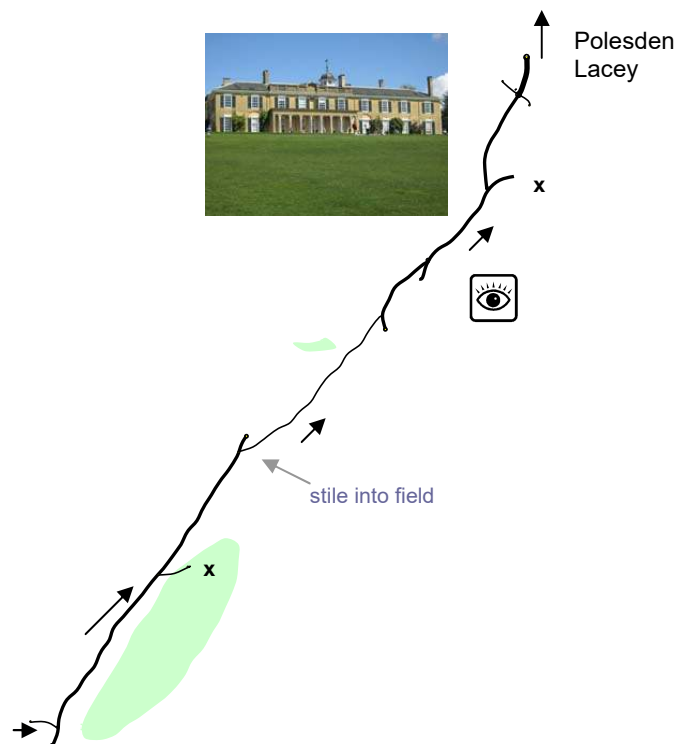

4 The path reaches a house on the left and joins its driveway. Just past the second house, Old Malthouse, turn left at a fingerpost on a footpath. The path goes through a modern kissing-gate up through an oak wood (a bluebell heaven in late spring). It then goes through another kissing-gate, along the left-hand side of a meadow and through another kissing-gate to a track. Turn right on the track. In 100m, just after going through a gate across the track, turn left over a stile. Go along the right-hand side of a sheep meadow. Just before the next corner, turn right through a kissing-gate. Follow the path through trees to another kissing-gate and turn left through more trees with a meadow on your left. Go over a stile and continue down through a bluebell wood to a road.

5 Cross the road, a fraction right, and go through a wooden swing-gate opposite. Go uphill, over a stile beside a large metal gate and along the left-hand side of a meadow. After two more stiles, you join a drive which leads down to a lane. Cross the lane to a drive marked Haneys. You have a view of London on the left including, on a very clear day, Wembley Stadium arch. Where the drive bends right, continue straight ahead on an enclosed bridleway uphill and then between meadows. Continue through woodland to a lane by Gatehouse Cottage. Cross the lane and continue on a cinder track, keeping straight ahead at all times. The track becomes a path and soon leads down to a wide stony track. Turn left on the track.

6 In 400m, 40m after a junction on the left, you pass a post with yellow and blue arrows on the right. Ignore this turning. About 250m further, ignore a narrow path sharp right but turn right 10m later through a new wooden gate into a large open sheep meadow. The path goes diagonally up the meadow and runs along the top. Eventually it exits in the corner, via a gate or stile [2014: both broken: but the gate may be open]. Veer left on a wide track coming from the right. The track runs past Yew Tree Farm on the right and joins a track coming from the farm house. Polesden Lacey is now visible ahead. Half way down, fork left at a fingerpost on a bridleway. The path runs along a fine banked yew avenue. At the end, go straight up the tarmac lane next to Polesden Lacey.

Polesden Lacey is an estate and house belonging to the National Trust. The current Edwardian house is the creation of a remarkable woman. Mrs Margaret ("Maggie") Greville was born in 1863, the daughter of the hugely successful scottish brewer William McEwan, "a plain blunt man" but with a fine eye for art, and Helen Anderson who at the time was married to a porter at the brewery. The Hon. Ronald Henry Fulke Greville had oodles of class but a smaller fortune and all he needed was a wealthy heiress ... and so the story unfolds. They found this site with its historic Surrey house and Maggie had it completely remodelled. Ronald died just after its completion and Maggie brought her new society friends from London to her new country estate for weekend parties. She possessed the most extraordinary gifts of a hostess, able to make kings and shy foreign dukes feel completely at ease. The future King George VI and Queen Elizabeth spent part of their honeymoon there in 1923. Another quality was discretion. Bedroom arrangements were kept in total secrecy. The house and garden are open every day except at Christmas. It has a good restaurant and tearoom.

7 The lane runs under two bridges, the second being a kind of belvedere leading from the garden to the orchard. On reaching an open field, immediately ignore a bridleway left. 80m after, ignore a signpost pointing left across the field with a gate on the right into the car park. If you would like to visit the house and garden, go right through the gate. The farm shop, gift shop, café and restaurant do not require an entrance ticket. You need to return to this point afterwards. Stay on the main track for another 350m or so to a major junction.

WC

Ignore the track that joins sharp left but, 5m further on, at a fingerpost, fork left on a well-surfaced track heading for a farm. Follow the track through Goldstone Farm and then for some distance between fields, finally emerging through a wooden gate to a road, the A246. Cross the road carefully to a footway on the other side and turn left.

- 8 The path runs off-road through a grove and re-joins the main road. Turn right shortly after at the next road Rectory Lane. In about 600m, on your left, you pass The Grange Centre. Just after this, there are footpaths left and right, easily missed. [2016: the signpost on the left is missing due to building work.] Turn left on the narrow path. The path leads to a road. Cross the road Manorhouse Lane and take a tarmac path opposite past a sign for All Saints Church. Soon you pass the church, a real gem.

All Saints Church, Little Bookham dates from the 1100s, a simple interior with a modest bell-cote and several interesting original windows. This location on which it stands has yielded several prehistoric artefacts. Unfortunately, the church is usually closed.

Continue past the church heading for modern school buildings. As you pass the school, avoid several paths forking off left and stay close to the buildings, avoiding a right turn at the corner. As the path enters woodland, stay close to the flint wall on the right. Finally the path reaches the cemetery of St Lawrence's Church. Amongst the gravestones you will find an irregularly-shaped one belonging to Sir Barnes Wallis, inventor of the "bouncing bomb" in WW2. You come out to the road where the walk began.

The "Sir Douglas Haig" pub is situated nearby in The Street (down Crossways), a traditional village pub. Left at the mini roundabout is "The Plough", a Youngs inn with a delightful garden in the back.

Getting there

By car: The walk begins in Church Street near the Church of St Lawrence in Effingham village. To get there, turn north at the traffic lights on the A246 Dorking-Guildford and turn right at the mini-roundabout and right again. Or you could take the following route:

Take the A3 to the M25 junction and leave the A3 there by the slip road, taking the middle lane. At the roundabout, go straight ahead, signposted Guildford, as though you had changed your mind and wanted to re-join the A3. In about 100m, leave the slip road by turning left onto a narrow road signposted Effingham that runs through the forest by a lake on the right. Follow the road all the way to a T-junction. Turn right and immediately left over a humpback bridge and past Effingham Junction station. Follow the road all the way to Effingham village. At the mini-roundabout, turn left and first right. Park considerately near the church.

By bus and train: no. 478 runs from Guildford to Leatherhead via Effingham and Bookham (for the station). No. 408 runs from Leatherhead. Both not weekends. Bookham station is about 1 mile = 1½ km from the walk. Check the timetables.
