Wooded hills, village

In Brief

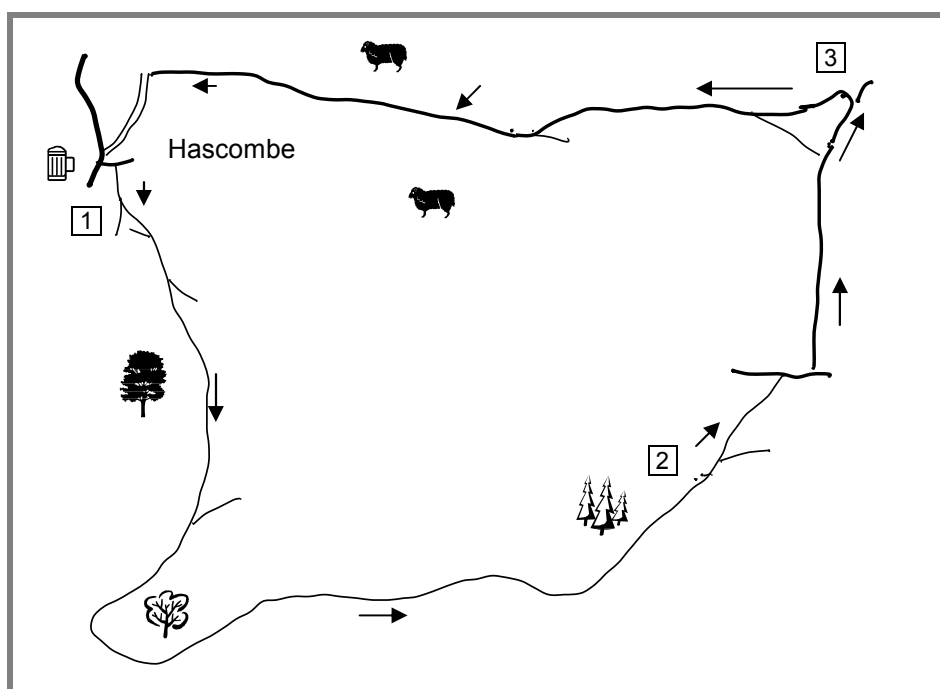

This is a fine easy walk round a Surrey beauty spot with views in all directions. You can combine this walk with Hascombe and Hydon's Ball in a figure-of-eight.

This walk does not require any special footwear or clothing and is quite perfect for dogs too.

The walk begins at the car park opposite the White Horse pub in Hascombe, Surrey. For more details and for alternative transport see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 Cross the road to the pub and take the driveway on the right of the pub. In about 100m, turn right beside a garage built in the centre of a wide footpath. There is a yellow arrow pointing this way and you will be following them for most of the first part. After a gentle ascent in a sunken path, veer left uphill. You join a track coming in from the right. In spring, bluebells are in evidence. In about another 200m, at a fork, take the more level path right, ignoring the wider track left. The slope below was cleared of brushwood recently, giving you good views across to the Loxhill valley and the Hurtwood. At a T-junction by some tall beeches turn right through rhododendrons. This fine path curves round the hill and occasionally you have good views on your right. On your left, beyond the steep banks, are the remains of a Celtic hill fortress. You eventually pass, on the left, a large sandy bank with a large log serving as a seat and opposite, on the right, an opening in the trees with fine views to Dunsfold Aerodrome and the South Downs. 350m further, on entering birch trees, you pass junction left with a wide path and, also left, a tall perfectly conical conifer. 30m further, fork left on a narrower rising path, leaving the main descending track. Don't miss this turning.
- 2 This pleasant path rises into a high area with holly and beech and passes by an old metal fence. A smaller path joins it from the left and the path begins to descend into a valley with open fields on the other side. It meets a gate near the field and here you turn right on a sunken path a short distance. At the top of a rise, at a crossing path, take the wide path left running up a ridge with the field visible on your left and steep woodland on your right. Soon you have a bank on your right and a coppice (trees cut down to the roots) on your left. Ignore a marked footpath left here. At a major fork, keep right ignoring the blue arrow and continue along the edge of the hill to another junction of paths at the corner of the hill. Turn sharp left here.
- 3 You are now on the return journey on the other side of Hascombe Hill. Continue on this broad track for some distance. Soon, on your right, a field comes into view and you pass a junction with bridleway. The path descends gradually, weaving left and right and follows a hedge and fence, eventually coming out to a road in Hascombe village. Continue ahead a short distance to the village pond where there are ducks and benches to sit on. This is a wonderfully peaceful spot. Hascombe church is Victorian. The road by the pond leads back to the pub.

The White Horse pub is favourite destination because of its perfect setting. It has a large garden and a restaurant serving locally-sourced food. Unusually perhaps, it also offers coffee and afternoon tea and an imaginative selection of soft drinks.

Getting there

By car: See map overleaf. The car park is the sandy area opposite the White Horse pub in Hascombe, Surrey. To get there: take the A3 through Guildford and later turn off for Milford. At the first traffic lights in Milford, turn sharp left. Along this road on your left is Secretts, a huge farm shop which sells an astonishing range of delicacies as well as organic produce. At the mini-roundabout turn right and then immediately left signposted Milford Station and Hydestile. Continue on this road for 1½ miles ignoring all turnings off. Cross a major road at Hydestile and continue for just over a mile. You ignore a turning left for Godalming and then pass some fine woods. After ½ mile, where the main road curves right, there is a house on the left called Mare Pond House. Here you have a choice:

(1) For the adventurous driver, fork left along a very narrow lane. As there are not many passing places you have to hope that you'll meet nothing coming the other way. Eventually you come out to the village of Hascombe. Turn right when you reach the main road. The White Horse is close by on the left and the car park is opposite it.

(2) For the cautious driver, stay on the main road ignoring the left fork. You eventually come to a T-junction at a main road where you turn left. The White Horse is about a 1½ miles on the right and the car park is opposite it.

By bus: Arriva bus 42 or 44 from Guildford or Godalming. Check the timetable.
