Woodland, high hills, views, village

In Brief

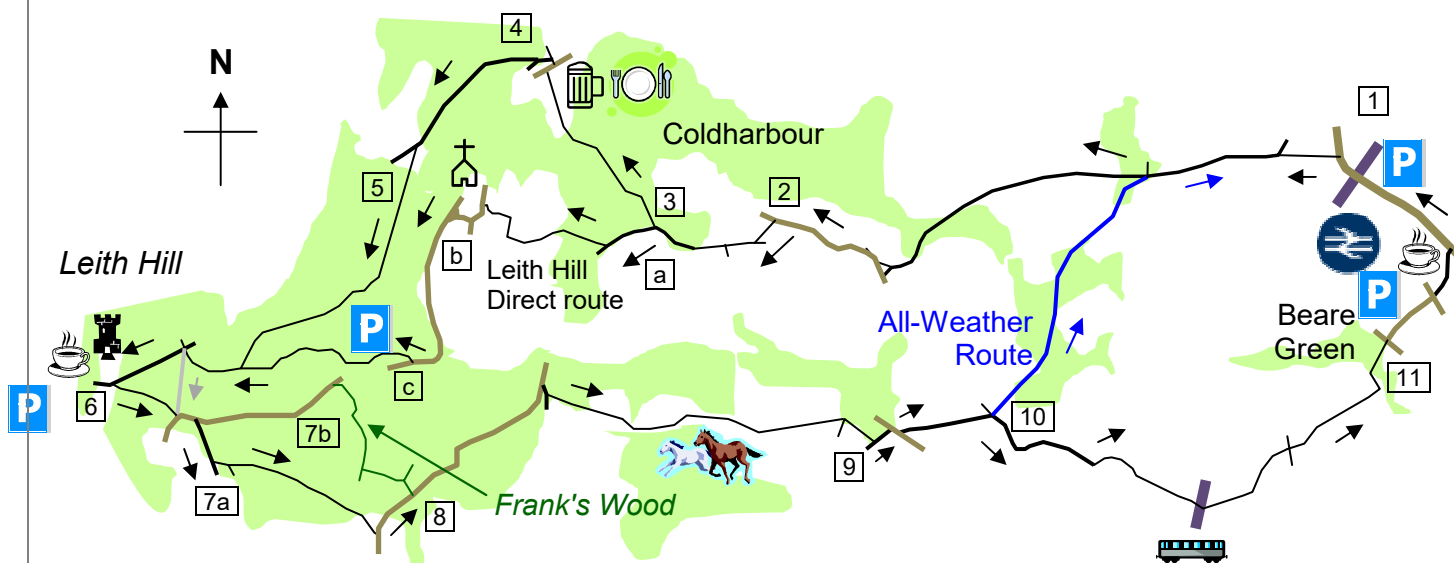

Leith Hill by train! But you can also take your car to the start of this excellent circular route, with easy access from the main A24 road. As you approach Surrey's highest point, you have the option to visit the village of Coldharbour and its celebrated pub with its own brewhouse. Hot drinks and snacks are available at the tower at the top of the hill and there is a direct alternative route to the tower, shortening the walk a little.

There are no nettles and few brambles to worry bare legs. In the wetter seasons there is inevitably some mud on the tracks and in the fields but there is an "all-weather" option making this walk relatively dry. It is still essential in wintery weather to wear boots. There is one steep section where you may find an optional hiking pole handy. With no main roads and few stiles, this walk is fine for your dog.

The walk begins at the Holmwood Station, near Dorking, Surrey, post-code RH5 4RB. There is no service on Sundays. But otherwise there is a good service from Dorking, Sutton and London termini. Check the timetables. If you come by car, there is ample space for parking near the start of the walk. Note that Holmwood Station is really in Beare Green. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 From Holmwood Station, turn left on the road. In 150m, just after the last cottage, turn left at a fingerpost (sometimes hidden in bushes), passing an old kissing-gate, on a narrow path. Any initial mud will quickly clear. At the other end, another redundant old kissing-gate leads to a tarmac lane. Keep left on the lane and follow it for 400m, going past the gates of Capel Leyse and ignoring a footpath on your left at Jersey Farm. You reach a signposted junction of drives. Take the right fork, a tarmac lane marked as a dead end. You pass a large house Moorhurst Manor on your left after which the lane becomes a rough track. Ignore a yellow arrow and stile on your right, staying on the track. The track rises gently, soon passing large houses on your left and on your right. Just after the houses, at a fork, keep right and continue to a tarmac lane. Bear right on the lane.
- 2 On your left soon you pass the entrance to Kitlands East Lodge. 150m after it, look for a stile on your left (easy to miss) with a fingerpost indicating a footpath. Turn left over the stile, follow a path along the right-hand side of a small grassy meadow and descend to a junction. Turn right here on a farm track with great views on your left across the Surrey/Sussex weald. Ignore a stile and yellow arrow on your left and stay on the track which becomes tarmac. 15m after the start of a brick wall on your left, there is a new fingerpost on your right indicating a footpath into the woods. Here you have two options:

Decision point. If you would like to go direct to Leith Hill where there are hot drinks and snacks available, omitting the village of Coldharbour and the pub, skip forward in this text and do the section called Leith Hill Direct. Otherwise, continue with the next section.
- 3 Turn right at the fingerpost into the woods. Your path snakes its way uphill under chestnuts and hollies. On your right is Anstiebury Hill Fort and there is an unmarked path, not on your route, that leads round it (see the walk in this series "Leith Hill from Holmwood Common"). Continue straight on through the wood till the path takes you over a stile and along the top of a delightful small sloping pasture. A gate in a new wire fence, a stile and a narrow path, with one or two patches of nettles, takes you out through a small wooden gate to the road in Coldharbour. Turn right to arrive immediately at the Plough Inn.

Coldharbour must be one of the most romantic isolated villages of the Surrey hills. For many years it was looked on with fear by inhabitants of the lowland towns as a refuge for smugglers who would keep their caches of contraband in safe underground sites and would deal ruthlessly with any outsider who interfered. The Plough Inn (renovated in 2016) serves several real ales, including three brewed next door in its own brewhouse, and has a garden in the back. It also offers accommodation.

- 4 Turn left opposite the inn and immediately turn left again uphill on a wide track going past a white house aptly named Clock Cottage. Keep to the main track, following a sign for Leith Hill Tower. You have a 500m-long steady ascent, with a wooden bench at your disposal for a view and a breather. Finally the trees on your left give way to a clearing, with a cricket pitch (the highest in Surrey) and its pavilion visible ahead on your right. There are views left here on a clear day to Gatwick Airport. 30m before the nearest corner of the cricket pitch, leave the track by forking left on a path across the grass. Follow this path into the woods and through a wooden barrier. There is a green-topped post here indicating that you are on the National Trust's Heathland Trail.

- 5 Follow these green-topped posts through woods for nearly 1 km. Basically, they lead you straight on, parallel to the edge of the hill, with good views to your left where the trees permit and soon a bench seat. There are one or two unexpected turns, so watch out for those posts – or you can simply keep to the edge of the hill. Eventually you see a sign for the Tower carved on the back of a sign for the car park. The walk now curves right on a much wider track, descends deep into the woods, and later reaches a deep hollow on your left (* note for future reference). Leave the green-topped route here and instead follow the sign for the Tower, going left steeply uphill on a broad path frequented by daredevil cyclists, also part of the Greensand Way. In 100m or so you reach Leith Hill Tower.

The tower was built in 1766 to raise the height of Leith Hill to the symbolic 1000 feet. It later fell into disuse until 1864 when the side-tower staircase was built and was fully restored by the National Trust in 1984. The servery has refreshments and nice homemade cakes, now open daily. You can ascend the tower where there is a view all round with miles of seeming wilderness.

- 6 After your break, turn about in the direction you came and, immediately opposite a corner of the tower, veer right across the grass passing a post with a blue arrow. (You now have a steep descent without steps, perfectly manageable; but if conditions are hazardous there is an alternative wide path down the deep hollow (*) which you passed earlier which leads to the same point.) Your narrow path descends steeply through trees and finally comes out to a road. Turn left on the road. In 30m on your right is a NT sign for Cockshot Woods and a signposted footpath. The interesting footpath down to the Broomehall Road from here is usually easy to traverse; just occasionally there may be an excess of mud at the very start or over-zealous forestry work [see note below]; another option [7b] below takes you through an attractive NT wood, slightly extending the transit by road.

- 7a Turn right at the footpath sign on a track, recently resurfaced. In 120m, take the left fork as indicated, leaving the descending track. In 50m, at another fork, take the left-hand option, a level path straight ahead. Follow this nice mossy path [2017: now brutally demolished by forestry work], soon with a thin wire fence on your right. At a post with a yellow arrow [2015:accidentally demolished] keep ahead on a rather narrow path. Your path runs downhill through a forestry area, sometimes with evidence of felling. At the end, go over a stile into a field. Your route is straight across the field to a (rather hidden) small old metal gate. If the field is heavily ploughed, you can go left round three sides. The metal gate leads down to the Broomehall Road. Turn left along the road. In 150m you pass, regardless, a NT sign for Frank's Wood. Skip the next section [7b].

- [7b] Alternative via Frank's Wood. Ignore the footpath sign and continue along the road for another 500m. At the bottom of a dip, just past some redwood trees, you will see a pink-topped-post ahead on the right. Just before it is a pink-topped signpost marked Landslip Viewpoint. Turn right here and keep straight on at the next post, joining Frank's Walk. Follow the waymarked route, right over a plank bridge, curving left and left at a junction, over another plank bridge. At the next waymarked junction, do not turn sharp left but instead leave the walk by ignoring the arrow and continuing straight on to reach the Broomehall Road at a wooden barrier and a NT sign. Turn left on the road.
- [8] Continue along this quiet road for another 500m. You pass along the way a sign for Mosses Wood given by Lady Editha Ivy Pigott-Brown of Broome Hall as a memorial to her son John killed in 1942 in Tunisia. After a double bend and shortly after a house, Highlands Rew, turn sharp right at a fingerpost on a track. Immediately leave the track by forking left through a large metal gate besides a disused stile and through a large wooden gate. Go down the left-hand side of this long meadow and continue up its centre. At the top, go over a stile just to the right of a large metal gate. Continue down the right-hand side of a large pasture. [Winter: there is some mud here caused by horses clustering round the gate; it will soon clear.] At the bottom, go over a stile or through a metal gate, over another stile and along the left-hand side of the next meadow. At the far end, bear left through an (open) metal gate and resume on the right-hand side of the next meadow. At the bottom, veer right, avoid a footpath on your right and go over a stile onto a path beside a wire fence. The path leads down to a tarmac lane.
- [9] Turn left on the lane to go over a bridge beside a pond on your right, usually with a flock of white geese, and out into Henhurst Cross Lane. Turn right on the lane and immediately fork left by a fingerpost in the direction of Trout Grange. In 300m, the drive comes to a crossing of drives and tracks. You now have an option of an all-weather path which is good in damp conditions, although it duplicates 500m of the outward route; if the weather is dry and summery, continue with the next section to enjoy good views; otherwise take this option:
- All-weather path. Keep straight on at the junction, on a rough track. The surface is not perfect but in wet conditions you can hop to one side of any puddles. The track goes through the old coppice of Nobs Copse and Butlers Copse and runs beside a meadow on your right. It finally comes out to a junction of lanes, familiar from your outward journey. Go straight ahead. In 350, at a left bend, fork right on a signposted footpath (or stay on the lane) and turn right on the main road, back to the start.
- [10] Turn right at the junction with the main driveway. Just before the entrance pillars of Trouts Farm House, veer left, as directed by a fingerpost, past an unneeded stile beside a large metal gate, down the right-hand side of a large field. In the far corner, go over a pair of stiles, along the short right-hand side of a meadow, over a stile and up steps. Cross the railway line carefully. Go down steps, over a stile and along the right-hand side of the next field. In the far corner, go over a 2-plank bridge, ending at an unneeded stile, to a concrete farm drive. Cross the drive to go over a stile into a field. Keep along the right-hand edge, soon going between two fields. Turn left in the corner to go through a swing-gate on your right.

- 11 Your path goes over a sturdy bridge, up steps beside a garden fence and out to a road in Beare Green. Cross the road and keep ahead on Woodside Road. At the end, cross a road and take a tarmac footpath opposite. This path leads out to a little shopping precinct with a Chinese takeaway. Turn left on the main road, passing the village pond and reaching the station where the walk began.

Leith Hill Direct

- a Stay on the tarmac drive. Avoid turnings off, shortly passing the entrance to Kitlands. Immediately after this, turn right at a fingerpost on a narrow footpath. You pass the ancient farm buildings on your left of Kitlands Farm. Your path curves left across a bumpy meadow with isolated trees and then curves right up a bank. It runs beside a bramble hedge up to a gate in a wire fence. It turns right under laurels, left by a cluster of bamboo and uphill beside the wall of a house. The path goes over a chunky stile and right on a driveway. Opposite the door of Chasemoor Cottage, turn left up a bank to a signpost and turn left on a tarmac lane.
- b Immediately turn right at a road junction, passing Christ Church (built by John Labouchere of Broome Hall, consecrated in 1848). Fork left in the direction of the Car Parks and keep left on the major road, Abinger Road. Ignore a footpath on the right at a sign for Coldharbour Common and continue past more red-tiled cottages. After 400m on this road, it bends right and you reach the Landslip car park.
- c Go right into the car park and keep left through it, following a footpath sign and a Tower symbol. The path goes down at first parallel to the road. It then rises under some magnificent redwood trees with ever-widening views. After a not-too-taxing climb, with steps at the end to assist you, you join a wide track coming from the right. The track descends to a multiple junction with a deep hollow on your left (* note for future reference). Follow the sign for the Tower, going left steeply uphill on a broad path frequented by daredevil cyclists, also part of the Greensand Way. In 100m or so, you reach Leith Hill Tower. Now re-join the main walk at section 6.

Getting there

By car: Beare Green lies just off the A24 road, just after South Holmwood, south of Dorking. If coming from the north, ignore a turn off for South Holmwood. Turn off at a sign with a rail symbol marked Holmwood Station and Beare Green. There is ample room to park in the village. In the rare instance that you can't park near the station, park in a side road by the village pond or at the end of Woodside Road (on the route), postcode RH5 4RH.

By train: begin the walk at Holmwood Station, one stop south of Dorking, with good services from Dorking, Sutton and London termini, excluding Sundays.

By bus: bus 93 runs from Horsham or Dorking. Check the timetables.
