Long woodland trails, wetlands with boardwalks, lake, heath, grassy plains

In Brief

This is a fascinating walk of great variety, featuring long woodland trails, many of them unsigned, punctuated by some considerable surprises. The most notable of these is the Wetlands Centre where a boardwalk and good sandy paths keep you dry-shod, and where food and drink is available at the Heather Farm Café.

There are no nettles and no troublesome undergrowth on this walk. Some of the paths on the north side are muddy in a wet winter but the lack of fencing means you can usually skip to either side. Provided you have good boots, you will enjoy this walk even (or especially) in winter. With very little road walking (and no stiles!), your dog will be very welcome on this walk.

The walk begins at the Fishpool car park on Chobham Common, Surrey. The car park is just off The Gracious Pond Road. The not-very-near post-code is GU24 8HN, what3words key:///mime.guards.candy, grid-ref: SU994636. From 1 Apr 2020, parking will be free, the all-day parking charge having been abolished in favour of a voluntary donation. Starting and ending at the Fishpool gives you the frisson of a round trip to a distant forest, with lunch at the midpoint. There is plenty of free parking by the café at Heather Farm, but it seems unfair to deprive visitors of a parking spot. Besides, it rather spoils the idea of the excursion from remote Chobham Common. Don't try parking at Horsell Common. The free car park near the roundabout has a limit of two hours! The central Sandy Tracks car park is exclusively for members of the Horsell Common Preservation Society which owns and runs the Common. (With an annual membership of only £12.50, or £15 for two, you might like to join a very worthy cause and get the benefits). For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 Starting in the Fishpool car park, go past a one-bar barrier and a notice-board, and continue down to the waterside.

There was a watermill here from medieval times and the fish were a welcome dietary supplement for the monks of Chertsey Abbey. For a detailed history, see the neighbouring walk "Chobham Common".

Turn left along the edge, passing a useful bench seat. At a T-junction, turn right on a path which leads back to the pond side. Keep left beside the water and then right through a wooden barrier, to pass the short end of the pond. After a second wooden barrier, keep left, leaving the pond, crossing a ditch and heading up onto the pine-clad heath. Your path veers a fraction left, crossing a felled area, and meets a wider path at an oblique T-junction. Veer left on this wide path. Just before a main road, fork left, then right to reach a road opposite a large brideway sign. Cross the road and follow the indicated brideway straight ahead, with a house over on your left.

2 (Care! you need to concentrate for a short while to get onto the correct path across the common.) In only 20m, at a marker post, turn left, following a blue arrow. Your path runs close to the rear garden fence of the property. Only 10m after the start of the fence, at another marker post, turn right away from the fence on a signed bridleway. In 15m the path splits with a footpath forking left (yellow arrow) and the bridleway forking right (blue arrow). Choose the left fork, the footpath. You now have a lonely trek across the pine, birch and heather heath of Stanners Hill on a narrow but quite clear path with some good dry sections. At a crossing path shortly, go straight over, still following the yellow arrow. Your path goes over another marked crossing after 250m and again after another 150m. After a further 250m of tall pines and rhododendrons, you reach a T-junction. Veer left at the T-junction, still following the yellow arrow. In 150m, you meet a large sign Bridleway Link to Youngstroat Lane. Turn right here and in 20m ignore a similar sign pointing right. Keep straight on along a rather squishy path, with horse pastures on your right. In 300m you reach the main Chertsey Road.

3 Turn right on the main road for an unavoidable 150m and turn left on a wide driveway, Bonseys Lane. Where the track veers left into a stables, keep straight on, now on a wide dirt path. Fairoaks Airport is on your right.

This airport used to be RAF Fairoaks during the last war. It now supports a variety of light aircraft and provides training through Synergy and the London Transport Flying Club. Since 2016 the owners have planned to close the airport to build 1500 houses on the site. An opposition group "NO Fairoaks New Town" has since sprung up.

The path emerges onto the green expanse of the airport. Your route is dead straight across the grass, but you are asked not to stop! At the other side, the path enters woods. On emerging through a wooden gate and over a bridge, you are welcomed into a beautifully landscaped park, part of the campus of McLaren Applied Technologies.

McLaren are a legendary Formula One Team which launched the McLaren F1 to the well-heeled in 1998. The McLaren Group has far wider interests, including precision engineering, collaborating in vaccine development and researching into renewable energy.

Passing the Silicon Valley-style research centre on your left, follow the signed path through a line of new trees and past landscaped ponds. You pass a grove of young trees on your right, and then a pond (which may be seasonal) with a picnic bench. Your destination is the dark shroud of Horsell Common ahead. A notice board, three stumps and a house finally herald your entry into the forest.

Horsell Common covers 355 ha (880 acres) and nearly half of it is a Site of Special Scientific Interest because of its distinctive heathland and rare flora and birdlife. The Common includes a newly restored Islamic Peace Garden and several trails, including the Bedser Trail, named after the famous cricketer brothers.

4 The paths across the Common form a complex network and you need to concentrate at the start here and later after passing the farm (see below). Keep straight ahead on a wide track for only 20m. Turn right here on a narrow unmarked path into the woods. After 100m on this knobbly path, another path joins from your right. In 80m you reach a junction of paths. Keep straight on here, passing an open bleak moor on your right. 120m further on, you meet a wide diagonal crossing path, with an (open) metal gate visible to your left. Turn right on this wide highway, the main path that traverses the Common. You will be following this easy path as far as the Sandy Tracks car park.

- 5 On your left soon is a large sandpit. In H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds", this was where the first Martian spaceship landed. There is even a computer game available with Horsell Common as the launch point! The area on your right soon is Danewell Hill, the only upland on this flat (but far from dull) terrain. You pass a pond on your left and finally, after 1½ km of easy walking, you reach the Sandy Tracks car park, with spaces only for HCPS members (see intro).
- 6 The main path runs too close to the main road, so the next stretch is much quieter and more interesting. But you need to concentrate for the next ½ km or so. Go through the car park, immediately meeting the access drive. Turn right on the drive. In 70m, you meet a very narrow crossing path. It is slightly lower than the raised driveway and quite obvious on your right, although on the left it may be rather obscure. Turn left on this narrow path, heading for a stand of tall pines. Your path winds its way through the pines, goes over a 2-plank bridge and joins another path coming from the right. You are walking close to the horse pastures of Wapshott Farm with their wire fence on your right. After 200m, you will notice that the wire fence turns right at a corner, by a horse pasture. The main path also turns right to stay next to the fence. This is where you leave the main path.
- 7 Instead of turning right with the fence, keep straight ahead on a rather faint path. The path immediately forks, but you can take either fork as they both do the job. In only 30m or so you come to a T-junction with a wider woodland path. Turn right on it. This is a popular path amongst regular visitors to the Common and it will lead you, without further ado, to your next destination. Where you meet a wide surfaced drive, cross straight over. Soon you have a ditch on your left and the path gets a little twisty: just keep straight on at all times. Finally, after a total of 400m on this path, the path ends at a tarmac drive. Turn right on the drive, quickly entering the precincts of Heather Farm, a popular destination for families, host to the Wetlands Centre and café.

The café on your right is licensed and serves teas and more substantial nutriments. Just beside the café is a series of walkways, worth exploring, with a picnic table, and a bird hide where woodpeckers, goldcrest, kestrels, fieldfare, snipe and reed bunting are just a few of the species you might glimpse.

- 8 After possible refreshment, keep straight ahead on a well-made path which runs beside the car park on your left. 150m after the car park, you go over a stout bridge. Turn immediately right, thus keeping the river on your right. Your path soon crosses the river via a bridge on the right. Avoid the tempting boardwalk here and instead turn left on a worn grassy path with the river now on your left. The path bends right in the corner and then left over a bridge, becoming a wide sandy path. Where the path enters a green space, avoid a boardwalk on your right and keep straight ahead, still with the river on your left. You pass various seasonal ponds and water pools whilst on your left the buildings and pastures of Sunfield Farm are evident. After you go over a ditch, the trees are closer on both sides of your path. Finally, at the end, a swing-gate takes you out of the wetlands to meet the official footpath.

- 9 Turn left on the footpath, going over a wide bridge. Follow this excellent path, soon ignoring a left fork at a 3-way fingerpost and continuing over another bridge. Fair Oaks Airport is on your right (see the earlier section). Beyond the airport, on a low hill, you can see the brown building of Ottershaw Park, a historic mansion built in 1761, part of a large estate. Ignore a swing-gate and footpath on your left, finally joining a tarmac lane which leads from the airport to the main Chertsey Road. Turn right on the road and, in 100m, cross carefully and turn left onto a tarmac drive, avoiding the industrial estate on your left. (The drive is marked No Through Road, Private but it is also a public bridleway!)
- 10 You pass Stanyards Cottage & Farm on your right with its large orchard. At a Y-junction, ignore the narrow footpath ahead and stay on the tarmac by forking left, as for Stanners Hill Manor & House. In 150m, just after the rather modest Manor, look for a 3-way fingerpost and fork right, thus leaving the tarmac, on a bridleway through rhododendrons. In 150m, at a 3-way junction, veer left, still following the main bridleway. Just before the corner of a large low house, turn right, following a blue arrow to avoid the fence of the property. Veer right again at the next blue arrow, still circling the border of the property. At the next marker post, ignore a yellow arrow pointing right and keep straight ahead. You now enjoy 300m of radiant birch wood, finally joining a path from the right, just before a house. Ignore a blue arrow that points right towards the house and keep straight on, with the house over on your right, till you shortly reach the Stonehill Road.
- 11 Cross the road to a junction with the Gracious Pond Road. Don't take that road, but take a narrow path just to the left of the road, going past a wooden stump. Follow the main path, crossing diagonally under wires, avoiding all turnings off. Your path runs across a heath which gleams even (or especially) in winter with pine and birch and heather. After 300m, you meet a marker post where you can see some large metal gates a little to your left. Keep right here and stay on the path as it wheels right. Very shortly, the path splits to go round the stump of a tree. Go another 30m (45 paces) and turn right on a narrow path.
- 12 This path is narrow but quite obvious and well-used, and it is the first decent path on your right. Magically, it takes you immediately through a wooden barrier to the Fishpool. Turn left along the edge, going through another barrier. Where you see an earth bank ahead, keep right, going round the long side of the pond. In only 40m, turn left away from the pond. However, as an aid to navigation, if you stay on the pondside for another 20m, you reach a bench seat where you can enjoy a final view of the pond before final departure. If you did not park at the Fishpond, keep straight on after the seat, to the indicated spot in section 1. Having turned left away from the pond, on an upward-sloping path, continue a short distance to reach the car park where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: the easiest way to the Fishpond is from the M25. Come off at junction 11, Woking. Follow signs for Woking (A320), Chobham (A319). At the end of the dual carriageway, at a roundabout, go right, in the direction Chertsey, Staines, on the A320. After ½ mile turn left on the B386, signposted Windlesham. Ignore a junction on the right and, in over ½ mile, at a fork, take the minor left fork as for Stonehill, Chobham. In exactly 2 miles, just after a group of houses, opposite a welcome sign for Chobham, turn right onto the Gracious Pond Road. The car park is ¼ mile on the left.

By bus/train: buses 73 and 592 from Woking go to Horsell. Check the timetables.
