Woodland, views, quiet paths

In Brief

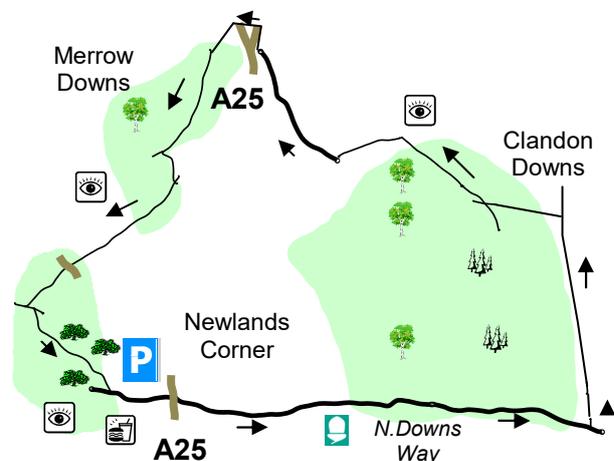

Newlands Corner is a tip-top favourite place for families and for very polite motorbikers. Many people just walk over the Downs, enjoying the views. There are good walks south to Blackheath (see e.g. Gunpowder and Profound Silence in this series). This walk, in contrast, take you through some lesser-known paths in the woods over Merrow Downs.

This is a good walk even in winter because of the green of the pine and yew trees. There is very little mud but just a few nettles that might catch bare legs. This walk should be fine for your dog too, with a short lead. There's a good hotdog stall in the Visitor's Centre.

The walk begins at the Newlands Corner car park, postcode GU4 8SE, what3words: ///driven.stews.cheese. Parking is now free. To locate this car park, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

Bird's Eye View

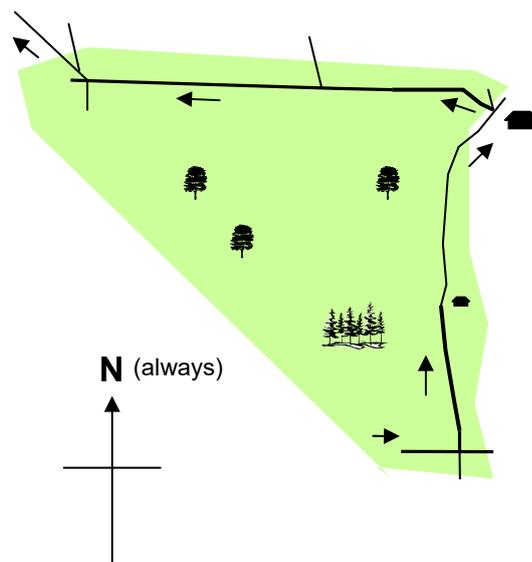

The Walk

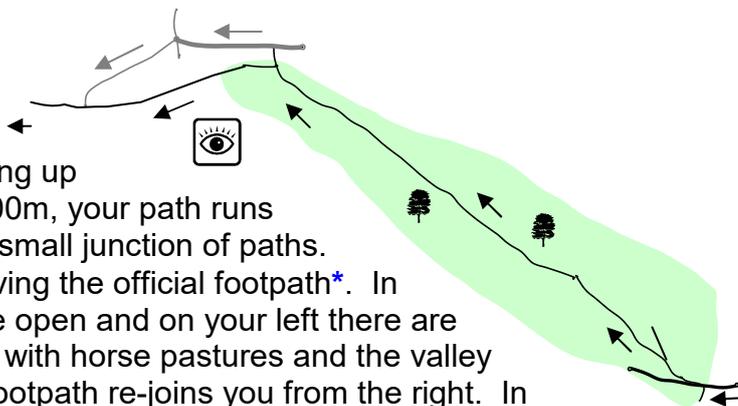

- 1 From the Newlands Corner car park, walk back towards the road and fork right on a path with a post and a blue arrow to a fingerpost just before the road indicating the North Downs Way. Continue straight on and cross the main road, re-joining the North Downs Way on the other side. The North Downs Way is a long-distance footpath from Farnham to Dover. In about 1½ km you are joined on the right by a permissive horse ride and, after 200m or so, there is the first definite crosspaths with a smart new fingerpost, just before a darker area of yew trees. The Silent Pool is on the right but your route here is sharp left on a good path through the remains of a gate.

- 2 Follow this path, soon passing a black storage tank, with the woods of Clandon Downs on your left. (See the walk in this series "Newlands Corner, Secret Woods".) Continue straight ahead past timber stacks. Your path joins a track coming from your right and passes a cottage and some farm buildings. Keep ahead now, on a wide grassy path. The path descends past a large metal gate to the larger Old Scotland Farm. Go straight over, past the house, the Tillingbourne Brewery and cow sheds and up a concrete track. In 20m, turn sharp left on a bridleway [care! in summer undergrowth the sign is easy to miss], avoiding a yellow-arrowed footpath to its right. After 250m, ignore a 3-way fingerpost and keep straight on. In another 300m or so along this fine woodland path, you come to a junction with a narrow path coming in from a small metal gate on your left and a good path branching off to your right, indicated by a new fingerpost.

- 3 Branch right at the junction and immediately take the left-hand, more gradual, option of the two uphill paths now before you, leading up through a coppice. After about 400m, your path runs through a clearing and reaches a small junction of paths. Keep left at the junction, thus leaving the official footpath*. In 50m, your path comes out into the open and on your left there are good views to a series of hillsides with horse pastures and the valley beyond. After 100m, the official footpath re-joins you from the right. In 100m, the path reaches a junction of drives.

* The left fork is now generally used by the public. If, for any reason, you need to use the official footpath: keep straight on, veering right to a T-junction with a wide track. Turn left on the track to reach the corner of a field. Continue across the centre of the field, aiming for the far left-hand corner. In the corner, exit the field left and turn right on a path, re-joining the prescribed route.

- 4 Veer right on the main drive. The drive runs down for ½ km to reach the main road, the A25, at a one-way system. You need to enter the woods on the other side, but to reach them you need to go round by the traffic-light junction. Turn right on the footway beside the south-bound lane to reach the traffic lights. Cross over left just before the lights and follow the grass verge to reach the north-bound lane. Cross over this busy one-way road and turn left on the footway on the far side. In 30m, fork right by a redundant stile on a signed footpath.

- 5 Follow this straight wide austere woodland path, through a lofty cathedral of planted mature trees, ignoring another wide avenue branching off right. After running gently uphill for nearly ½ km, the path meets a minor path from the right at the corner of a field, zigzagging right-left round it. Continue on the main path through an untidy coppice, avoiding any minor paths leading off. In 80m, at a little green triangular junction, take the right fork. In 130m, at another post with yellow and blue arrows, turn left onto a rather rough crossing path in the direction of a blue arrow.

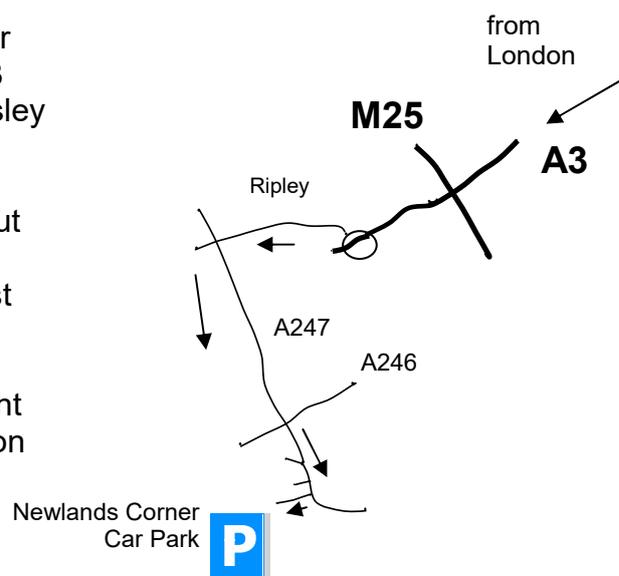

- 6 In 120m, at another crosspaths by a post with blue and yellow arrows, turn right in the direction of the yellow arrow. In 150m or so, the path reaches a sunken path. Cross straight over here as indicated by the yellow arrows. The footpath leads through yew trees [2014: round fallen trees] and dense ferns and up to the golf course at the top of Merrow Downs with more views ahead. Keep left along the edge of the green, going past a triangulation pillar. 70m after the pillar, just before a yew tree, go left on a rather hidden path overgrown with bracken, by a rather hidden marker post. This very winding path leads through bracken and ferns and more yews and out rather abruptly down steps to a road where you need to take care.

- 7 Cross straight over the road up a step to a path opposite. Keep straight ahead along this narrow path [2014:over a few fallen tree branches], following the occasional yellow arrow, crossing first a wide bridleway and then a narrower path. Finally, the path descends through a yew glade to a waymarked T-junction. Turn left here on a wide track. In 50m, after more large yews, turn right on a narrow path uphill. On meeting a path coming from the right, veer left and, at the top, turn left at a T-junction onto a wide stony path. In 30m, go straight across an oblique crossing path and follow the path through fine woodland for some distance, ignoring all crossing paths and minor branches. After 400m in the woods, the path reaches the west side of the Newlands Corner car park. Turn left here, back to the point where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: to get to the Newlands Corner car park from the London area, take the A3 towards Guildford and turn off after Wisley onto the B2215, signposted Ripley, go through that village and, 2 miles=3 km after the village, turn left at a roundabout on the A247 signposted West Clandon. Follow the road through the village, past the entrance to Clandon Park and the church, to major traffic lights on the Leatherhead-Guildford road. Go straight over, uphill. The car park is at the top on the right.
