Woodland, lakes, heath, country houses

In Brief

This woodland walk takes you over Esher and Oxshott Commons in Surrey through surprisingly wild and lonely country, considering its proximity to London and the hum of the A3 trunk road.

The walk can be divided into two different shorter walks, one mainly in Esher Common and one in Oxshott Common.

The terrain is easy, so any good footwear is fine and there are no nettles or stiles. However, in the wet seasons, you will find boots essential. Your dog is welcome on the 3-mile option.

Winter-Spring 2020 and during the wet summer of 2021: the path under the railway in section 3 was flooded; walkers could not pass through and diverted via Claygate, using the new perfectly pleasant Claygate Loop (see at bottom). End-March: the path was negotiable very carefully using planks; the Water Company is working on it, but (2021) there is little sign of progress. In winter 2022, it was "just about passable".

The walk begins at the first Sandy Lane car park (approximate postcode KT22 0NZ, grid ref TQ 139 617). To get there from the A3, turn south on the A244 (Oxshott, Leatherhead) and take the first road right, Sandy Lane. The car park is only about 150m on the right. Don't confuse this car park with the little Oxshott Common car park which is further up the A244 near the sand pit. You can also begin the main walk or the 3-mile walk at Oxshott Railway Station. For a map see → Getting There.

The Walk

Decision Point. If you are doing the shorter 3¼ or 4 miles walks, skip to near the end of this text and do the Oxshott Heath Westbound section.

If you are beginning the walk at Oxshott Station, skip to the section called Oxshott Station Approach.

- 1 Go through the car park parallel to Sandy Lane on your right, leaving by a path that soon joins Sandy Lane and emerge at the junction with the main A244. Cross the main road, turn left on it and, in 100m, turn right on Queens Drive. Where Queens Drive curves right, keep ahead on Stokesheath Road North which becomes a fine country lane with superior properties on the right and open fields on the left. Continue through a gate beside a wooden gate and over the railway, after which there are houses on both sides, especially the imposing Stoke House. You reach a T-junction with busy Fair oak Lane.

Previously, all walks directed you along the busy road here where there is a thin verge but no footway. An alternative is now available which takes you on a longer circuit through the beautiful woodland of Prince's Coverts, avoiding all traffic. Because this alternative route (2b below) uses a private road, it is believed to be unsuitable for large groups. Singles, pairs and families with children will find it useful. If you have any doubts or you are a large group, use the road (2a).

- 2a Road route. Turn left on Fair oak Lane. You can use the footway on the other side, but eventually it disappears and there is only a narrow grassy bank. This small section of road walking is unavoidable. After about 750m total on this road you reach a small red house. Turn left here at a fingerpost, past a metal barrier, into the woodland of Great Oaks, part of the Crown Estate.

- 2b Woodland route. Turn right on Fair oak Lane and immediately left on Prince's Drive, using the pedestrian gate on the right of the metal barrier. This is a private road, the most exclusive of all Surrey residential communities, so you must be quiet and considerate. After 350m, just as you see the road 100m ahead curving right, look to your left for a small wooden gate beside a large wooden gate. Go left through the gate, past a sign Crown Estate, Welcome to Prince's Coverts. Prince's Coverts is a huge area of woodland with marked trails, protected but open to walkers (see the walk in this series "Claygate, Ashted Common, Prince's Coverts"). After 20m or so, the track goes through a small clearing, with a garden fence on your left and a field on your right. After 150m or so you arrive at a junction. Turn left here, keeping the garden fence on your left. Shortly, the path zigzags left-right over a ditch. In 150m turn right onto a wide path (don't miss this turn! - the old wire fencing which used to guide you has gone). In 100m or so, at the next corner, turn right again. In 150m you come out into a more open and mature part of the wood with tall pines. Just after a stream, ignore a path sharp left and continue ahead to a junction with a very wide surfaced track. Turn left on the track to meet a similar track in 150m at a T-junction. Turn left and keep straight on along an avenue of tall thin poplars. It leads in 300m to a barrier. Go through a large metal kissing gate and continue on a driveway past a house to meet the main road, Fair oak Lane. Cross carefully straight over, past a metal barrier, into the woodland of Great Oaks, also part of the Crown Estate.
- 3 After 300m you reach a crosspaths at the corner of a meadow. Turn left here. [\[Mar 2020: see note in intro about the flooded underpass: you have the option of following the Claygate Loop at the end.\]](#) In around 400m you pass a white coal tax post, one of several you may have seen today. The posts were erected in the mid-1800s by the City of London at points where tax was payable by people bringing coal and other commodities into the city. About 200 have survived and are now preserved. The path passes a meadow and a large white metal gate on your left. Soon after, take the left fork, going under a railway bridge. The horse-head sculpture in the cattle pasture is by Nic Fiddian-Green; it is called "Serenity" for a calming influence on drivers. The path, now a track, winds left and right under the busy A3 road. It then runs between meadows of sheep and horses before briefly entering woods and reaching a junction. Here turn left at a 4-way fingerpost.
- 4 Ignore a path branching off right at another fingerpost and follow the track past a gate and a cottage. By the entrance to Arbrook Farm, keep ahead through a barrier. The path is now narrow, running through a holly wood and over a bridge. After 100m, go straight over an oblique crossing path and over another after 50m, always staying on this very narrow woodland path. Soon you reach the main Copsem Lane near the roundabout with the A3. Turn right on this road, and in 200m cross it carefully, turning left into the Copsem Lane car park.
- P
- 5 Go to the noticeboard and take the left of the three paths in front of you. After 20m, go over a 4-plank bridge across a ditch, now keeping the ditch on the right. After another 40m, cross the ditch again and follow the path with the ditch now on the left. Head for the pine-clad hill visible ahead, passing on your way to the left of a playful wooden sculpture. Your path goes up a series of flights of steps taking you to a raised plateau with lines of large leaf trees. Follow these trees, always keeping to the high ground. In 300m or so, you meet a wide sandy crossing path near a two-way fingerpost. Continue straight over.

- 6 Your path goes past several benches and, after 200m, up and down a dip. You are still on a high path, under chestnuts and pines. When you meet a wooden railing, keep ahead over a wide diagonally crossing path and pick up a clear but narrower path directly opposite. This path snakes its way over high ground, crosses a wider path diagonally, goes over a pine-crowned hill with a bench, and descends to a junction of several paths with wooden railings. Avoid a path sharp left but take the second wide path on the left.
- 7 The path runs over a causeway with the Black Pond on your left, passing sculpted bench seats. Black Pond is the largest on Esher Common. It once served as a water supply for Claremont but now is a haven for dragonflies, toads and wildlife that thrives in the reeds. Either continue past a wooden barrier. Or, just as the water ends, turn left over a wooden ramp, taking this chance to observe the surrounding watery world, go over a bridge, fork right over another long bridge, turn right and left, back on the original wide path. In 50m or so, at a 3-way fingerpost, turn left onto a wide track. In 200m, the track becomes tarmac and goes up a rise. Turn right over a bridge across the busy A3 road, reaching a fingerpost on the other side.

Decision Point. If you would like to go back to the Sandy Lane car park by a shorter, but attractive, route of 8 km=5 miles, omitting Fairmile and Oxshott Commons, skip to near the end of this text and follow the section Oxshott Heath Eastbound.

Turn right after the bridge on a wide track in the direction of Sandy Lane, as marked by a new fingerpost.

- 8 In just 30m, leave the track by forking right on a narrow path that runs through a cleared area near the A3 road. This patch used to be a forest of tall pines but they were cleared in 2015 to provide a margin to protect the road from fallen trees. The path goes over two 2-plank bridges and then turns left, up two steps to a T-junction. Turn right here on a wider path. The path reaches a high bank with a marker post bearing a blue arrow indicating a “permissive horse ride”. Ignore the blue arrow but veer left immediately behind the marker post, up the bank, to obtain a view of the Middle Pond below. Keep ahead, always on the high ground, with the Pond down on your right and keep going round till eventually your path bends left by a bench seat and you reach that permissive bridleway again. Turn right on the bridleway. Follow the path as it curves right downhill, ignoring a junction on the left, and continue past a bench and over a bridge. In 20m, avoid a minor path that forks right and follow the main path up into Fairmile Common. On reaching a junction and a fingerpost, turn left on a wide horse path following a wire fence on your left (in places hidden by vegetation). Continue straight on along this narrow path, ignoring left and right forks, passing blue arrows, for 250m, to the Fairmile Common car park on Sandy Lane.
- 9 Turn right on Sandy Lane, using a woodland path opposite that acts as a footway. The woodland path is replaced by some finely mown front lawns. In 250m you reach a T-junction. Turn left here on Miles Lane and in about 100m, at a pillar box, turn left on Fairmile Park Road, following the footway on the left. You pass cottages, including a thatch and Compton House, once home of aviation pioneer Sir Thomas Sopwith. Where the road bends right, keep ahead on a path* which runs parallel to a residential road on your left (Fairmile Park Copse) and later becomes fenced. Reed's School, an independent school originally founded in East London, is on your left, then on both sides. Cross a drive, then a road, finally reaching the trees of Oxshott Common. (* In high summer, the footpath ahead may be overgrown and difficult to walk on. You can instead take the residential road on your left, only about 100m to its end, where there is a path to the right which re-joins the expected footpath. By then it is wide and clear.)

10 Keep on dead straight, taking a wide path ahead, slightly uphill. In 150m or so, at a major junction at the top of a rise by a seat, turn left. The path follows high ground with an open valley on the right. Avoid minor paths into the woods on the left. At a junction where several paths fan out under a solitary tall thin pine, take the rightmost path through trees which gradually reveals views on your right across the valley. (If you are finishing the walk at Oxshott Railway Station, skip to the 'End' section of the Oxshott Station Approach. Otherwise ...) Your path bends left, passing three seats.

11 Soon you pass more seats and a War Memorial on your left. Turn left here, immediately after the memorial, onto a wide path that leads, in 200m or so, to a big sandpit. Veer left at the sandpit, still following a faded white arrow on a post, with the sandpit on your right. At the next white and yellow arrows, keep right as indicated, staying beside the sandpit. Ignore the next (rather hidden) white arrow pointing sharp left and continue for just 5m to a post with a yellow arrow. Fork left here, away from the sandpit, on a narrow path into the woods. In 30m, at a T-junction, turn left on a slightly wider path. In 20m, cross straight over a diagonal crossing path and continue straight ahead. This path leads eventually to Sandy Lane, opposite the car park where the walk began.

For final refreshments, there are several places in Esher and Oxshott. The Swan Inn in Claygate (postcode KT10 9BS) is also very near and has parking and an open aspect onto the Green.

Oxshott Heath Westbound

Take this short cut at the start of the walk if you would like to take the shorter options, omitting Great Oaks.

Starting in the middle of the Sandy Lane car park, almost opposite the entrance, take a new wide sand/cement timber-lined footpath into the woods. You are in an attractive forest of pine and birch, always on a clear path. After 250m, your path goes over a crossing path. In another 70m, you go over another crossing path as your path descends to cross a stream. In a short distance your timber-lined path divides. You have two options:

Via Esher Common Heights (for the 4 mile walk)

Keep straight ahead to meet a wide track and turn right on it. In 300m, as the track becomes tarmac, you pass a pond on your right and cross the A3 trunk road by a bridge onto the sandy pine plains of Esher Common. In 100m, go over a crossing track, next to a bench seat, heading for the pine-topped ridge ahead. Your path rises to meet a crossing path by a 2-arm fingerpost at the start of the woods. Turn left here as directed by the finger that points you to Black Pond.

Now join the main walk at section 6.

Direct to The Middle Pond (for the 3¼ mile walk)

Where the timber-lined path divides, turn left on another branch of the path. It runs parallel to a track on your right. In 130m the path bends right to meet the track. Cross straight over the track, passing a 3-way fingerpost, in the direction West Bridge, Portsmouth Road. This nice easy well-surfaced track twists its way across the beautiful open heath. After 600m and a patch of woodland, you reach a T-junction with another wide track. Turn right on the track towards a bridge but, just before the bridge, turn left on a wide track in the direction of Sandy Lane, as marked by the fingerpost. [\[Apr 2022: gone!\]](#)

Now join the main walk at section 8.

Oxshott Heath Eastbound

Use this short cut if you would like to go back to the Sandy Lane car park after the A3 bridge at section 6 by a shorter but attractive route.

Ignore the right turn after the footbridge and continue ahead, signposted horse ride Oxshott Heath. In 20m, turn left at a fingerpost onto a wide straight path. Follow this bridleway, avoiding lesser paths off, as it twists and turns and crosses a beautiful open heath. Eventually the path reaches a junction with a wide track and a 3-way fingerpost. Cross straight over the track and join a new raised, timber-lined sand/cement path that bends left and runs parallel to the main track. In 120m you soon see a T-junction with a similar timber-lined path. Turn right, staying on this excellent and clear path into the woods. The path will now lead you directly back to the Sandy Lane car park where the walk began.

Oxshott Station Approach

Start: exit the station through the main building. Cross the approach road and take a narrow tarmac footpath, immediately opposite the entrance door, on the left of an advertising hoarding. Keep straight ahead past a small noticeboard on a very wide gravel path. The path rises gently and reaches a 4-way fingerpost. Turn sharp right uphill on a stepped path. At the top, keep ahead, passing some seats. Join the walk at section 10.

Claygate Loop

Use this route if the path under the railway in Section 3 is flooded or if you would like to extend the walk slightly through Claygate (see map).

Keep straight on at the crosspaths and follow the wide woodland track until it takes you over a bridge across the A3 road to come past a noticeboard and a metal barrier to a junction of residential roads. Continue straight ahead on Coverts Road. In 600m, at a junction, turn sharp left on Vale

Road. In 150m or so, turn right on swankier Beaconsfield Road. At the end, as the road curves right, turn left on Claremont Road. Continue through a barrier and over a railway bridge on a footpath which bends left by a hedge and then veers right under tall trees. You come over a bridge with rails and, after more walking between fields, you come past a wooden barrier gate into woodland. Keep straight ahead at a fingerpost and continue through the woods to another barrier and a fingerpost where a path joins from the left.

Now re-join the main walk at Section 4.

Getting there

By train: begin the walk at Oxshott Station, just 250m from the walk across Oxshott Common (see the text).

By car: Come off the A3 road onto the A244, signposted Leatherhead. Follow the sign for Oxshott. In ½ km=0.3 miles, turn right on Sandy Lane. The car park is just over 100m on the right.
