Village, woodland, hills, views, pub and teashop

In Brief

Compton nestles in the South Downs just below Compton Down on one side and Telegraph Hill on the other. It has timbered houses and an old church and, of course, its pub. The Coach and Horses is the best kind of local offering food and a wide selection of real ales as well as rare events such as “stake nights”. Just opposite, The Village Shop doubles as a pretty and popular teashop with outside tables which serves really good fancy pork pies, filled rolls and hot snacks.

There are no nettles on this walk and sensible shoes are adequate.

The walk begins in Compton village, W.Sussex, postcode PO18 9HA, grid ref 775148, so refreshments come at the end of the walk. There are parking spaces in the little square by the pub and teashop. But, if space in the square is at a premium, it's best to park in the recreation ground about 300m south on the B2146 (on the left just by the 30mph sign). (Note: there's no short cut in the field on return if you park here.) For details of getting to Compton, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 With your back to the pub, turn right along the main road, the B2146, going through the village and passing the Vicarage, Compton House and the half timbered Farndens. Soon you are in open country and you pass an end-of-speed-limit road sign. About 200m after the road sign, look for a new metal kissing gate on the left. Go through the gate onto a path running between a field and, on your right, a sheep pasture. At the end, go through another kissing gate and turn right on a path in a verdant area under beech trees beside the sheep pasture. The path widens to a large sloping meadow with scattered ash trees. Keep straight on up a slope. (It is possible to take an alternative short cut by turning left in the meadow up to the two metal gates. This avoids the kissing gate, the walk on the lane and another gate. However, this route is not an official footpath and we therefore cannot recommend it.) Continue to go through a kissing gate in the hedgerow and turn left on the lane. In just over 100m, turn left through a small metal gate on a signposted bridleway. As you go, visible on the hill sharp left is the National Trust stately home of Uppark. Follow the path to a pair of metal gates, then gently uphill, skirting around the bottom of the hill.
- 2 At the other side, go through a metal gate and follow a path with a field on your right and woodland on your left. On a good day, you can see Portsmouth Harbour in the distance. In the hills on your right, the hamlet of Eckenfield can be seen. Go through a wooden gate beside a metal gate and continue gently uphill in a wood of ash, yew, hawthorn and hazel. Another similar pair of gates lead to an area of more yews as the path curves right. The path now weaves gently through this magical stretch of forest and eventually reaches a gate in a wire fence. Go through a gap beside the gate, the remains of a broken wooden gate, and immediately, at a fingerpost, turn left on a footpath.
- 3 Follow the grassy path between field. At the corner, by an old farm shed, turn left on a path between hedgerows which, judging by the number of species, must be quite old. At a T-junction by a small wooden shed, turn left. The path immediately wheels right. You now have extensive views right to the South Downs and, further right, you may catch a glimpse of the Isle of Wight. Your wide path bends sharp right and there is a hewn wooden seat at the corner from where you can admire the view down to West Marden. At the bottom you reach a 4-way fingerpost. Take the first, not the second, left turn as indicated by the pointer, thus leaving your original wide path which also bends left here. Your path goes across the field on a straight narrow line made by a tractor. On the other side, go through a gap in the hedge and through a tall metal gate. You are now in a grassy meadow dotted with trees and shrubs and thick with wild flowers.
- 4 On the far side of the meadow, go through another tall metal gate and turn diagonally left across the field on a distinct path. On the opposite side, go through a double line of ornamental trees and out into another field. Go diagonally right across this field and, on the other side (about one third of the way up from the farm gate in the bottom right-hand corner), down steps to a road. Turn left on the road, arriving at the Coach and Horses and The Village Shop and Tea Room.

Getting there

By car: Compton is on the B2146, reachable via South Harting from Petersfield, and hence from the A3. If coming from the south, the B2146 or B2147 can be joined from the A27.
