Hills, villages, woodland, views

In Brief

This is a completely new walk taking you from a glorious part of the North Downs down into the greensand and memorable forests and hamlets to the south, then back up to the Downs for more forest and views. The attractive Friday Street lake and pub will be familiar from other walks in this series but the other routes are quite new and the experience unforgettable.

There are some nettles and brambles on this walk during the return to Ranmore Common. Because of the sandy paths, any sensible footwear is fine, except after prolonged rain when boots are essential. Your dog will love this walk too although he may need to be lifted over one or two stiles.

For people who like a shorter walk, there are a North option with stunning views, and a South option with the woods and lake at Friday Street.

The full walk and north walk begin at the National Trust Ranmore Common (or "West") NT car park, very approximate postcode RH5 6SY, grid ref TQ127502, just off the Ranmore Common Road near Dorking, Surrey, www.w3w.co/banana.joke.noise. This is not the big Denbies car park but the free car park deep in the woods one mile further west (away from Dorking) along the Ranmore Common Road, on your left. The south walk begins in Westcott, postcode RH4 3NH: park off the triangular green in the centre of the village. You can also begin in Friday Street, postcode RH5 6JR. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

Overview

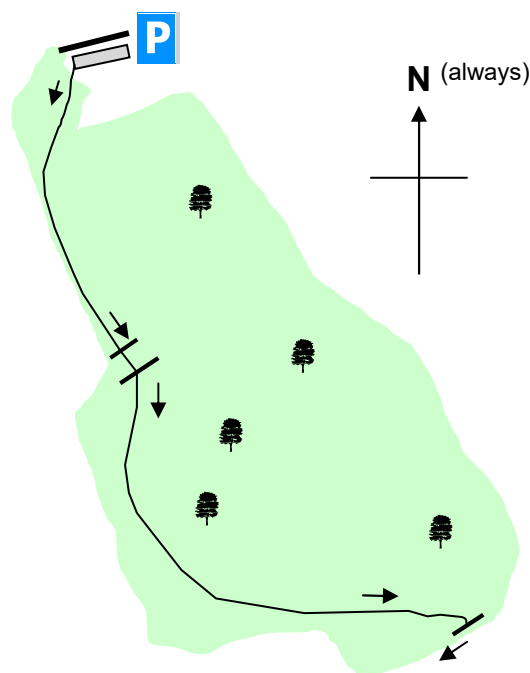

The Walk

If you are doing the South walk, starting in Westcott, begin by doing the Westcott West section near the end of this Guide.

Leg 1: Ranmore Common to Westcott 3 km=2 miles

- 1 With your back to the road, starting from the extreme right-hand side of the car park, go ahead beside a metal barrier near a [\[Apr 2021: fallen\]](#) National Trust sign onto a path. Shortly, your route joins a path from the left and zigzags through woodland, on a clear stony path. Your path goes over a crossing path, winds its way onwards, going over another, narrower, crossing path and begins to descend. If you encounter mud here, it is only for a short stretch and not typical of this walk. You soon reach a wide level crossing path. This is the North Downs Way. Cross straight over, on a path which curves left and goes gradually more steeply downhill. At the bottom, you meet a level path at a fingerpost. Turn sharp right.

- 2 Your path goes through a small wooden gate beside a large one and passes a National Trust sign for White Down Lease ("lease" is an old word for "meadow"). After another 350m, you reach a gate and a fingerpost and another NT sign. Go left here onto a bridleway between fields. Your way goes under a railway arch and bends right and left, all the time with good views around, especially back and to the left where St Barnabas Church-on-the-Hill is prominent. You pass a barn of Combe Farm and your path bends right towards more buildings. Here, avoid a footpath on the left and its yellow arrow.

Follow the tarmac lane following the Pipp Brook down on the right in the valley. The lane now reaches a stunning group of cottages (see pictures), beginning with Rookery Cottage, then between Springs and Mill House where the Pipp Brook spills in a cascade from the pond. At the start of a private road, fork left on a bridleway* between cypresses. Your path soon runs on a pleasant course between a meadow and a river valley. After 300m, you reach a fork with a yellow arrow on the right indicating the Greensand Way (GW). Fork right here, by an unneeded stile. Your path goes fairly steeply upwards through hollies and then levels out and winds under beech trees. You pass another avoidable stile and reach a junction of paths at the corner of a field.

- 2 Go straight ahead, beside two wooden posts to the left of a gate, onto a faint path diagonally across the field. (If you want to avoid the field, such as when the rape is wet or in flower, you can instead turn right on the track and left just before a lane, keeping a stone cottage on your right, forking left.) In winter, as you proceed, you will catch sight of Leith Hill Tower in the distance. On the other side, maintain your direction over a stile (or using a hook-and-lever on its left) across a track, a fraction left, over a stile and through a small plantation. Keep downhill on a narrow path through bushes, veering left down through laurels, and go quite steeply down to cross a tarmac drive. Continue downhill at another signpost. Shortly, you reach a lane. Turn left on this quiet lane, with the Tillingbourne stream babbling down on your right, then on your left. You pass a meadow and a cottage. Shortly after, go through a new wooden swing-gate on the right onto a footpath.

- 3 This path at first runs parallel to the lane and then diverges from it. When you arrive at a T-junction with a track, turn right onto it. Soon, keep left with the path at a metal gate, avoiding some private land of the Wotton Estate. Your path continues through superb pine and beech woodland, beautiful in all seasons. When you reach a 4-way fingerpost at a junction by the corner of a meadow, swing right on a wide grassy path, avoiding the narrow path ahead. Your path veers right alongside a fence and then goes steeply downhill. Go through a wooden gate at the bottom to a 4-way junction and turn left on a level track. First though, it is difficult to resist stepping forward to the stone bridge and gazing at the water meadows of the Tillingbourne stream as it runs down over the narrow weir. The track goes past Yew Tree Cottage with its scarecrow family and over a ford using a small wooden bridge, then past Pond Cottage to a lane by the lake of Friday Street.

The name "Friday Street" is a little mysterious but the name probably indicates an impoverished out-of-the-way unproductive place, because Friday was a day when not much food was eaten. The lake is in fact a hammer pond, like so many in England, the result of damming the stream to provide water power. "Friday Street" is the name of a track on Surrey native Paul Weller's album "Heavy Soul". Much of this area is preserved by the National Trust.

P Your route is left on the lane. (The car park is down the lane on your right.) However, first you will want to take the lane directly opposite, with the lake on your left, to reach the Stephan Langton pub / restaurant in 200m. [Apr 2021: closed! hope it will re-open!] For more details of this interesting local, see the "Stephan Langton pub walk" in this series. You need to retrace your steps after a refreshment break and turn right on the lane by the lakeside.

Leg 3: Friday Street to Westcott 5 km=3½ miles

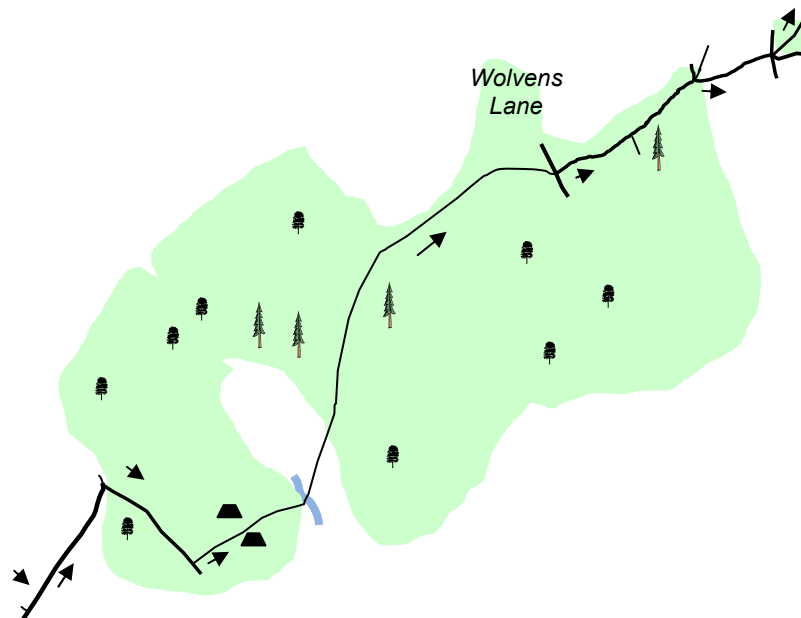

- 1 Just after the lake, before the lane bends left, go right between wooden posts onto a signposted footpath. Your path curves left uphill fairly steeply between hollies and beeches and some fine scots pines. On your right soon is the National Trust's Severell's Copse. Your path runs beside a line of beeches with a bank on your right and reaches a lane. Cross this lane diagonally, a fraction right, shortly reaching another lane. Cross straight over this lane and continue on a signposted footpath opposite. Very soon, just after your path goes downhill, you reach a fork. Take the right fork, the more level option, avoiding the left-hand descending path. Your path becomes sunken and joins a path coming from the left just as the hamlet of Broadmoor comes into view. Soon, at a marker post, turn smartly left by a house and follow a narrow slope down to a lane. Turn left on the lane into the hamlet.

- 2 See mini-map overleaf. The lane passes the well-named Old Cottage, with its stone devil, and Home Farm, a noted stud and livery. Opposite the farmyard, at a fingerpost, turn right on a bridleway. In 100m, at a new marker post, turn left on another wide path. The path goes uphill between the fences of Simons Cottage and Tillingbourne Cottage, over a stream, then rather steeply up. Eventually your path levels out (with a fine view of Leith Hill Tower to your right) and runs beneath some more tall pines. At a junction of sandy paths, keep ahead, a fraction right, reaching that perennial wide sandy byway Wolvens Lane. Cross straight over Wolvens Lane, with a metal barrier each side, onto another sandy bridleway.

Your path is joined from the right by a broad sandy bridgeway. Where the bridgeway shortly turns to the left, leave it by taking the right fork, a wide stony downhill path, almost straight ahead. In 80m, you reach a junction of five paths. Take the narrower downhill wooded path straight ahead, a fraction left.

- 3 At the bottom, you come to a 3-way junction. Bear left passing a fingerpost [2020: grounded and partly hidden] on a straight path through the conifer forest. As you reach the edge of the forest, ignore a modern kissing-gate on your left and instead stay in the woodland by veering right on a cinder track. The track bends left and passes the redoubtable Squires Farm on your left, with a view of Ranmore church spire on the horizon. As you reach the entrance to the farm, avoid its driveway on the right and keep straight ahead, still on the cinder path. Where the path bends left into woodland, keep ahead on a narrower grassy path, shortly going through a modern kissing-gate. Cross the centre of a meadow, slightly right, between electric fences, heading towards a new barn and other buildings on the hill ahead. Your path takes you over a stream in the corner and left on a wide gravel track, fenced on both sides, which gradually veers left, passing the farm buildings of Westlees Farm on your right. Continue on a fenced path along the right-hand side of the long pasture, with the hillock of Bury Hill in view ahead. At the next corner, go right, diagonally across the ragged meadow to the corner of the field, and through a new metal gate to a tarmac lane.

- 4 See mini-map overleaf. Go straight over the lane on a track diagonally opposite. In 180m you reach a choice of two paths near Mad Horse Copse. Leave the wide path here, taking the right fork just to the right of a sign for Surrey Hills Yurts. Follow this long narrow path, with a wooden fence on both sides, passing on the way a series of wooden bridges and a stile. A metal swing-gate leads you onto the right-hand side of an attractive meadow. In 10m, your path forks a fraction right across the centre, heading for a metal swing-gate visible on the other side. In the far corner, go through this gate, over a bridge and a stile, turning immediately left with the path. On your right are the Bury Hill Fisheries, a large angling centre with gate to a wide track. Turn left for just 5m and go right up more steps on a path beside a yew wood on the right (beside a tall wood carving on your left). This is the steepest part of the walk and it is quite a relief to reach a stile on the left. Go over the stile, continue on the other side of the fence and immediately veer left up some steps. Just 10m before a wooden swing-gate at the tree line, turn left and take the right fork, the higher of two narrow paths that run along the contour of the hillside. Pass a gate and seat on the right and continue ahead on the higher path, close to trees on the right. Your path goes very gently uphill, with great views on the left of Dorking, Westcott and Leith Hill Tower. You pass another bench seat. This is part of the Denbies Hillside Nature Trail, established by the National Trust. Finally, you reach another bench and go through a wooden swing-gate. Turn left on the North Downs Way.

- 3 In 20m, at a fingerpost, turn sharp right on a diagonal crossing path. In exactly 100m, you approach a track at a curve. (On your right is a derelict entrance to what was once a scout camp.) Turn immediately left here on a narrow path* through woodland. [* Jun 2020: care! - now churned up and widened by brutal forestry work.]

Keep to the main path at all times (now much narrower after the section with forestry work), avoiding lesser paths branching off. In about 500m, take a definite right turn with the path, avoiding a well-used forester's track on your left. 100m further on, turn left at a T-junction on a wide straight path running under tall scots pines. In 170m, you reach a crossing path. Turn right on the path which quickly takes you back to the car park where the walk began.

Westcott West

Do this section first if you are doing the South walk, omitting the North Downs.

With your back to the big triangular green in Westcott, turn right (west) on the main road. When you meet a junction with the old Cricketers on the left (now an Indian restaurant), fork left on Westcott Heath road, heading for Westcott Church visible ahead. The Church of the Holy Trinity is early Victorian, built to a design by George Gilbert Scott. Continue past the church, soon meeting the Greensand Way coming in from your left, as indicated by a signpost. In only 10m, ignore a dirt path on the right leading to the church yard but, immediately after, fork right on a footpath that takes you across the heath and grass, parallel to the lane you were on, with houses on your left. The path meets the lane again at a point where the lane loops sharp right. Cross over the lane to a wide track by a fingerpost 2018: [leaning against a tree] and continue on a woodland path. This path takes you down through more woodland and, in 250m, reaches Rookery Drive opposite the gate house. Keep left between the brick pillars of Rookery Drive.

Now join the main walk from Leg 2.

Westcott East

Do this section at the end if you are doing the North walk, omitting Friday Street.

Ignore the brick pillars and Gate House of Rookery Drive and instead turn left at a fingerpost on a footpath into the woods, up shallow steps. (In 80m, if you choose the more comfortable right fork, be sure to go left up a bank in 30m.) In 250m you come out by a fingerpost 2018: [leaning against a tree] to a tarmac lane. Cross straight over the lane to a path across the heath, parallel to the lane, with houses on your right. In 150m or so, the path meets the tarmac lane. Turn left on the lane, passing Westcott Church on your left. The Church of the Holy Trinity is early Victorian, built to a design by George Gilbert Scott. Continue till you meet the main road in Westcott with the old Cricketers on the right (now an Indian restaurant) and the big triangular green.

If you began in the Ranmore Common car park, resume the walk at Leg 4.

Getting there

If coming from the Guildford direction on the A25, turn left as you enter Dorking, as for London, and keep left at a sign for Ranmore, continuing as in the paragraph above. (For the more adventurous, turn left off the A25 onto narrow White Down Lane just after Abinger Hammer, turn right at a crossroads onto Ranmore Common Road; the car park is $\frac{3}{4}$ mile on your right.)

By bus/train: bus 21, 22 or 32 from Dorking to Westcott. Check the timetables.
