Village, woodland, meadows, bluebells, horse pastures, dismantled railway

In Brief

This is an easy walk through gentle countryside in West Sussex, beginning and ending at the isolated village of Slinfold where there is an excellent chance for refreshment at the Red Lyon pub. So this walk could be treated as a pub walk. The Red Lyon (with a “y”) is not a gastropub but it puts an emphasis on food and all the comments are very good: a worthy place to stop for a meal or a pint. It also has a good-sized garden.

There are one or two patches of nettles on the longer option, so shorts are not advisable. Good walking shoes or trainers are usually adequate but for the longer option in wet conditions you will be glad to have your boots on. Your dog can accompany you on this walk.

The walk begins in the centre of Slinfold village, near Horsham, West Sussex, postcode RH13 0RR, w3w:circulate.harvest.carrots. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

The name “Slinfold” is Anglo-Saxon from “Slynd”, meaning a slope, and “Fold” meaning just that: an enclosure (as in the word “sheepfold”). The village lies almost directly on Stane Street, the Roman Road from London to Chichester and was an overnight resting stage (the others being Dorking and Merton near London). The church of St Peter goes back to 1230 but it was completely rebuilt in 1859. The old church bell, according to legend, still lies in the bog here. The story is told that it fell off a wagon while it was being transported to the church and a local witch offered to retrieve it using her team of white oxen, but on condition that no one said a word. One man unfortunately shouted “hurray!” and the bell was lost forever. (Compare a similar story told in the Kintbury walk in the Berkshire series on this website.)

- 1 From opposite the Red Lyon pub in Slinfold, go past the church on your right (note the little nautical theme in the window of the house across the road) and, immediately after the church, turn right on Clapgate Lane. In 100m, just before a redbrick cottage, South Lodge, turn left at a fingerpost. Go past a large metal gate to join a footpath along the left-hand side of a field of maize. Your path takes you through a gap and over a small wooden bridge. Continue ahead along a clear path across the centre of another maize field. Go through another gap, across a stream and straight across a field, passing a large solitary oak, on your right as you go. A patch of woodland and another small meadow lead via a stile to the main A29 road (the old Stane Street). Turn right along the verge.
- 2 In 30m, cross the road carefully and go through a patch of tarmac and through a metal swing-gate beside a large metal gate. Go up the right-hand side of a large meadow. In 130m, avoid a right fork at a fingerpost and keep straight on with woodland on your right. In 300m or so you pass a disused stile and a 4-arm fingerpost. Continue straight ahead - you will need to lift a wire. You pass on your right a line of majestic oaks that form a boundary of the field, followed by more woodland. In the corner, go through a swing-gate into Farm Copse (aka Whales Copse). Follow a clear path through the centre of this wood. After a 2-plank bridge your path veers left a fraction. When you reach a marker post, ignore a stile on your right leading into a meadow. Instead veer left, staying on the path. It brings you out to meet a very wide level track. Turn right. This is the route of a dismantled railway, now the Downs Link path, a popular route for walkers and cyclists. In about 100m, just before a useful seat, turn left at a new fingerpost. Almost immediately, you reach another fingerpost at a wide fork.

Decision point. If you are doing the shorter option, skip to near the end of this text and do the Little Woodland Trail.

- 3 Take the right fork at the fingerpost on a clear, newly-surfaced bridleway and follow it with a meadow on your right, woods on your left. This is the route of an old rustic highway called Penfolds Lane. The path zigzags through woods and over on your right is the timbered Penfolds Farmhouse. Your path joins a drive coming from the farm and you pass on your left Morelands, another timbered treasure, whilst the surface becomes semi-tarmac. Your path descends to cross a stream and rises. On your right you pass Naldrett's and its farm barn with its low wide metal gates. 30m after the gates, at a fingerpost, go left over a stile into a horse pasture.
- 4 Keep to the left-hand side of three roped-off horse pastures with two metal kissing-gates in between. At the top corner, go over a stile, turn left in a field and immediately right at the corner on a clear fenced-off path. In 100m, at a gap, turn left by a marker post*, go past a ditch and take a path along the left-hand side of a field. At the far end, turn right for 20m and left again along the right-hand side of a field. After 250m, at the corner of a wire fence, by a marker post, turn right on a path through trees. The path goes over a long 2-plank bridge [Jul 2025: loose and very wobbly, slippery in the wet; some walkers climbed to bypass the bridge] and turns left on a path beside cypress trees, through a nursery. At a fingerpost, your path turns abruptly right and emerges on a driveway to a road. Turn left on the road (care! busy with traffic).
- 5 Pass the entrance to Tittlesfold and, 60m after that, go left at a fingerpost by a new stile into a meadow. Keep along the right-hand side and, via a new stile in a fence, into the next meadow. At the next corner, a stile takes you between fences and immediately to a 3-way fingerpost. Keep left here, staying beside the meadows on your left. At the end, go over a stile (avoidable by stepping over the ditch on your right) into Tittlesfold Copse. Follow a clear path through the wood which passes two fingerposts along the way and descends beside a mossy bank on your left. At the bottom, go down muddy steps, over a large bridge, up steps, and steeply up again. At the top, by a fingerpost, continue onwards, soon walking along the left-hand edge of Slinfold Golf Course. In just over 200m, just before the jutting corner of a wood, turn left at a 2-arm fingerpost to go through a small wooden gate, and then right on a tarmac drive. In 200m, at a 3-way fingerpost, ignore a junction on your left.
- Here the shorter option re-joins the main walk.
- 6 In 450m, the drive bends smartly left and, in another 100m, it takes you through a smart black metal gate to meet a concrete track. Go straight over the track to cross a bridge over the dismantled railway, the Downs Link path again. Immediately after the bridge, go sharp right down a narrow path to join the Downs Link and turn left on this wide straight highway. In 350m, the Downs Link goes through a long arch under the main A29 Stane Street. It zigzags past the old station yard and goes past a metal gate. At a white house, zigzag left-right, ignoring a path on your left, to continue as before, bypassing a large wooden gate. Eventually, the path runs between houses and through a gate to meet a road in Slinfold. Turn left on the road, keeping straight ahead at a road junction. At a T-junction turn left, quickly arriving back at the Red Lyon where the walk began.

Little Woodland Trail

Take this option if you are doing the shorter (5½ km=3½ mile) walk.

(Note: your correct path seems to be the left fork at the fingerpost, going through a modern kissing-gate into a horse pasture. However, this seems to be an error since there are no further markers and the gate in the far corner is locked. So ...)

Take the right fork at the fingerpost but, after only 10m, take a narrow unmarked path on your left, going over a ditch and keep straight ahead on a winding course through woodland, always keeping Newbury Paddock (the green pasture) not too far away on your left. In 250m, lift a wire and cross over a farm track. Keep ahead through a small wooden gate and follow a path through this pleasant woodland strip. Your path crosses two private cinder paths. After some distance your path finally ends, via a V-stile, at a T-junction with a tarmac drive. Turn left on this drive.

Now re-join the main walk at section 6.

Getting there

By car: Slnfold is signposted just off the A29 (Dorking-Bognor) road, 4 miles west of Horsham. Park on the roadside near the church and pub.

By bus/train: bus no. 100 runs from Horsham station to Slnfold, Mon-Sat only. Check the timetables.
